Fabulous value with The Gold

Don't miss out on this unbeatable compilation of six of US Gold's finest offerings.

Pick up some of the best games ever for a fraction of the shop price! As a valued Home Computer Club member you can now have them for under £12 on this fantastic twin cassette compilation!

Action stations with the ultimate battle action game. Into combat with the air, land and sea forces of Beach Head.

It's heart-stopping action all the way with this incredible multiscreen land, sea and air epic battle featuring breathtaking 3-D graphics. The drama starts when the battle fleet must be guided through the hidden sea passage avoiding deadly torpedoes and mines. Then it's action stations as you engage the enemy ships, planes and dive bombers that strike from distant aircraft carriers. Only by shooting down the opposing squadrons can you move into the next phase of the fray to attack the enemy ships themselves.

But the ordeal is far from over. Hit the beach and manoeuvre tanks and equipment through the obstacles and opposing fire before attacking the island defences and breaking through to the enemy fortress of Kuhn-Lin for the final battle.

Thrilling encounters in space with Sega's arcade classic.

Your attack space craft bullets over the asteroid city blasting gun emplacements, radar towers, missiles and enemy aircraft as they attempt to intercept. With superb flying skill you thread your way through narrow wall openings, lethal force fields and rocket fire. Finally after vicious space dogfights you encounter the fortress of Zaxxon with the deadly robot that looses off smart missiles.

Arcade game veterans will already know that Zaxxon was a major hit even before it transferred to home computers. One look at the 3-D scrolling battlefield and exciting colour graphics will convince you the game has lost none of its appeal!

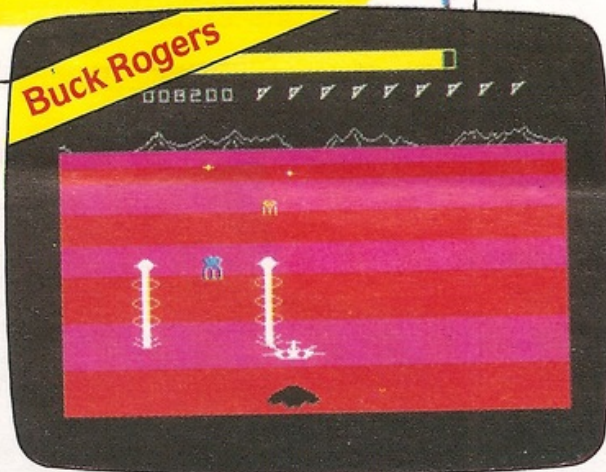

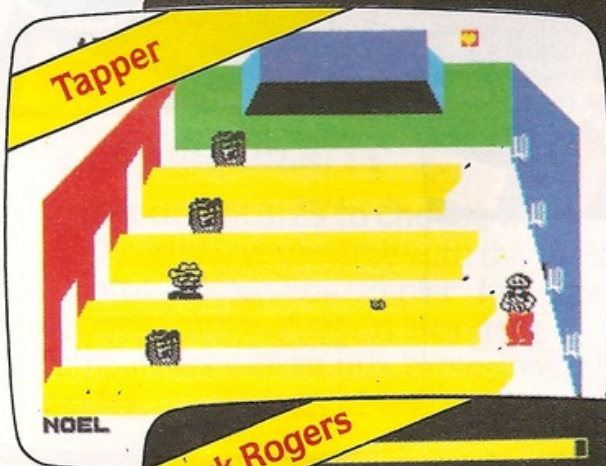

Danger and combat in the fast lane as enemy agents clash with Spy Hunter.

The enemy agents will stop at nothing to force your special turbo spy car off the road. Little do they know the vehicle is equipped with a sophisticated weapons systems to thwart anyone in hot pursuit. The attacks come thick and fast from agents with their own weapons. You swerve and flash through winding country lanes and over bridges. With luck you make it to a strategically-placed boathouse where your Spy Car becomes an amphibious hydro spy boat skimming along the river where you face new perils.

Screens and terrains change as you move from one danger to the other. And the action doesn't let up for a second!

Collection from US Gold.

Crazy bar room antics with the soda slingers in Tapper

Closing time at the local pub was never like this! Thirsty customers keep slinging their glasses down the table for instant refills. Can you serve them quickly enough to stop the glasses falling and smashing? In the four different bars there are the added diversions of dancing girls and awkward customers who invariably have to be dealt with – but keep your wits and don't allow those thirsty customers to get the better of you!

Cosmic combat in the 25th century with Buck Rogers.

Yet another Sega arcade great can now be played in the comfort of your own home. This time it is Buck Rogers fighting the battle for the Planet Zoom. Breathtaking 3-D graphics bring the reality of blasting into deep space just that bit closer. With three galactic screen displays, the thrills pile up as you skim the surface of the Planet Zoom to blast the enemy space hoppers. Then it's on into deep space to engage the Mother Ship. The action is fast and furious – demanding all your pilot skills.

Up, up and away on the Blue Max's peril-packed bombing mission. 3-D flying thrills in your World War One bi-plane.

It's back to the days of the first world war with this nerve-rattling simulation. Flying over enemy territory your mission is to bomb select targets. Down below enemy tanks and guns open up with anti-aircraft barrages while enemy planes prowl the skies above and below.

You bomb and strafe but all the while precious fuel is being used up and you must find a friendly airfield to refuel and repair battle damage.

Astounding 3-D scrolling graphics show fields and rivers realistically rolling by while the shadow of your aircraft forms a useful reference point to judge critical altitude.

Polish up your French the electronic way! Un Spectrum qui parle Français!

Nearly everyone needs to speak a little French. Even if it's only to make those day trips to the continent more fun. Now your computer can become a French language teaching aid. Carefully-graded lessons each cover a different subject area – for complete beginners in Level A, with Level B for students and anyone who wants to brush up on their French grammar. Key in the parameters you require, then translate the French or English words. You can learn at your own pace and the software will let you create your own individual lessons that can be saved for later use.

Don't worry about being left behind, you can pause at any time while you study a particular phrase. When you are ready to test your language ability, the computer runs a translation quiz. Learning French has never been so easy. Or so much fun!

Design and create your own arcade game without any programming knowledge!

How many times have you felt you could produce a better arcade game than the ones you buy? Many people have the creative ideas to write splendid games software but get put off by their lack of programming expertise. Now such a stumbling block is a thing of the past. With this splendid utility you can now design and write your own games choosing the elements using easy-to-follow menus and options. When you're finally happy with your choices, just save them to tape. The program will automatically be converted to independent machine code.

A host of features to choose from.

Designing your game with the "Arcade Creator" couldn't be simpler. Just pick the options from the menus listing the combinations of sounds, explosions, player modes, screen colours, and characters to build up your own scenario. You can even design a game featuring friends or family as main characters!

A comprehensive manual and on-screen tutorial guides you as you plan the various shapes and elements in your game choosing from the library of sprite shapes, background screens, and character sets.

Your finished game is not confined only to your own machine. Once it has been saved anyone with a Spectrum computer will be able to see – and play – your own work. Why not swap games with your friends. Or have a competition to see who designs the best game. And of course there is nothing to stop you from submitting your work to a magazine or software house. Who knows – perhaps you can write the next blockbuster!

Hack your way into a secret world of espionage and impending global disaster.

The most brain-teasing adventure of them all!

It's late at night and you're bleary-eyed from legally hacking into electronic bulletin boards. Somehow you've accidentally misdialled a strange computer. The message "Logon Please" flashes on the screen. Curiosity prevails and you try to crack the password that will get you into the mystery system and encounter a complex adventure that could lead to global catastrophe. You have no clues. There are no playing instructions. Like a real-life hacker you must use your ingenuity and trial-and-error to explore the adventure.

Once you've cracked the password a strange world of secret codes, spies, and sinister plots open up. There are astounding graphics and sound effects. But don't look for instructions. "Hacker" is like no other game you've played. Real-life hackers live by their wits. And so must you. But here is one tip. Keep a track of every move you make or you could be trapped in the system forever!

Fly back to 1940 in the legendary Spitfire.

Locate and destroy the enemy with this authentic battle simulation.

High in the skies over the south of England a Spitfire squadron seeks out the German enemy planes. Suddenly the sky is filled with planes of all colours. The dogfight is on and your Spitfire responds instantly to your commands as you loop and dive in pursuit of the enemy.

And unlike most flight simulation games, you don't have to master a handful of simultaneous flying procedures that have you flying into the ground before you've even taken off.

Choose from three levels of difficulty; the last of which requires you to take off, engage the enemy, and return to base without running out of fuel.

"The cockpit view is a very realistic representation of a Spitfire ... extremely responsive to the controls ... it's a bargain at any price."

Home Computing Weekly

"One of the most enjoyable I have played to date ... Spitfire 40 is a graphically excellent game that allows 'normal' people the chance of a flight in a Spitfire without having to pass an exam in reading badly-written 100-page instruction booklets".

Ribald rhymes and groovy games with "The Young Ones" book and computer game.

Did Adolf Hitler have spots? Why should people with no thumbs avoid hitchhiking? If you know the answers to such searching questions then you are obviously an extremely clever person who has got better things to do than read The Young Ones Book "The Bachelor Boys" and play the fab computer game that features Neil and his lentils, Mike and his stained duvet, Rick and his dresses, and Vyvyan and his edible rats.

We know what you're thinking. "Ah ha, yet another boring old tie-in when the game has only a faint resemblance to the TV series or book." Well you're wrong. Hah hah. 'Cos the computer game was actually and truthfully produced by The Orpheus in collaboration with Young Ones. And nothing has gone in without their involvement and approval.

But despite their distinctive interference the game's quite a challenge! Rick, Vyvyan, Mike and Neil are moving out. You have to collect all their belongings. It sounds simple. But it's not. And you'll have to buy the game and enter S.P.G.'s non-tranquil abode to find out why.

Also included is the amazing best-selling hardback book and revolting poster. Hide it from the kids and any other sensitive members of the family because the Young Ones do love to talk about nasty things that go on inside and outside bodies.

So don't just sit there. Bash up your piggy bank and send off now. How else will you know about "The Joy of Shopping", "The New Kama Sutra", "20 Foolproof Excuses for Not Doing an Essay", and "Radical Flower Arranging".

A great pair of war strategy games from Lothlorien

Captain the Special Operations Squad and destroy the underground germ warfare complex.

The enemy is fitting rockets in its Advanced Weapons Research Centre with a deadly virus. As leader of the Special Operations Squad you must take in a team and destroy the production area. You must select your squad of eight, each of whom has special skills. Combat with enemy patrols will take its toll and there are six different routes into the Centre. Time is of the essence. Overstay your mission time and you will miss the rendezvous for your pick-up plane. With seven levels of play this graphic adventure also utilises split screens and 18 different maps of various locations.

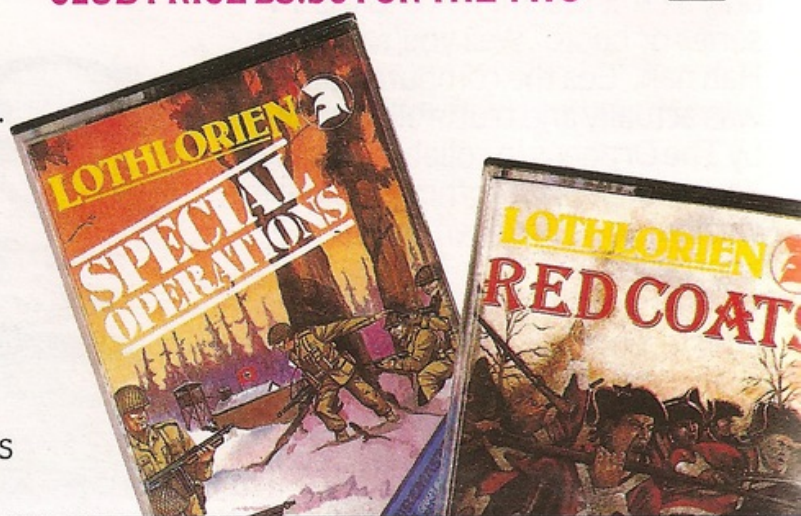

Fight the pitched battles of the American war of independence

A graphic wargame with five assault scenarios.

Just over 200 years ago the British Redcoats and American forces fought each other for the American colonies. "Redcoats" recreates five of the famous battles with graphic maps and grids on which you challenge the computer by guiding your own forces. The computer offers you the chance to define your own battles with options to change the maps and deployment of troops. You can save either your own or pre-defined battles to tape. Play as either the British or American army against the computer or set the game to two-player mode.

Let 250,000 gardeners help you plan your garden!

Super bookware pack matches the right plants to conditions in your own garden.

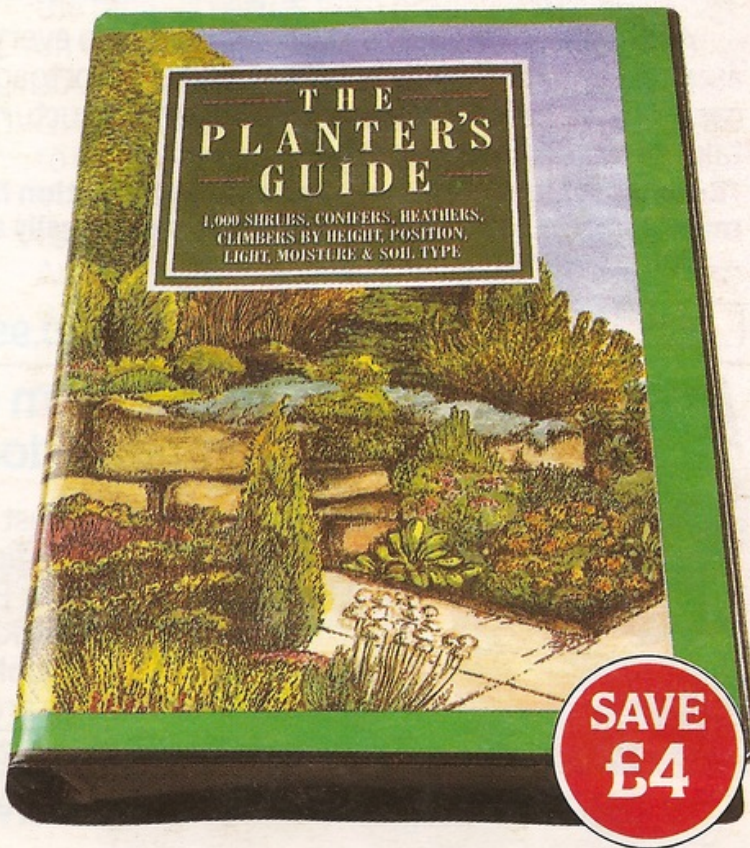

Even the most "green-fingered" people sometimes make mistakes in choosing plants for the garden. But now you can take the guesswork out of planting with this special pack. Use the computerised information of more than 1,000 plants based on the database of a top garden centre to select the right plant to match soil, colour, and height requirements. Then turn to the attractive 136-page companion book for a fuller description of the plants the computer has selected from its store of 1,000 shrubs, conifers, heathers and climbers.

The methods and choices suggested in "The Planter's Guide" have been tried and tested by more than 250,000 gardeners. Never again will you have to wonder whether or not your purchase will survive soil, sun and wind conditions in your garden. You'll even get valuable tips on preparing a planting hole as well as garden design notes to suggest a few sample plant beds.
