Blow up Parliament? Us? You've obviously got the wrong Guy. These are the YS news pages, not a plot to overthrow the Government! (Pass the fuse, Tzer...) Honest, the Fawkes never crossed our minds.

PLAY FOR YOUR LIFE

Exclusive Ocean Game With Next Issue!

Yes! In keeping with our policy of bringing you the very best in computer entertainment, the game on next month's cover is yet another Ocean! You can't believe your luck, can you? But it's true. Especially for you, because we think you're skill enough, we present Play For Your Life, the hardest futuristic sports game you've ever seen! The game is set in a game cube, where you play against the computer, or a real opponent, in a fight to beat the balls into the target holes over your heads. It's hard! It's new! It's addictive! And it's all yours with the December edition of Your Sinclair. Buy it and believe it!

Happy birthday to you, happy birthday to you, happy birthday dear Microprose... happy birthday tooooooo yooooooooo! Yes, Microprose celebrated its first birthday last month, and what better way to celebrate than to get everybody's fave reserve Major, 'Wild' Bill Stealy, Managing Director Stewart Bell and European Sales Manager John Tweedy together and make them eat an aeroplane? Crunch! No, it's a candy coated F15 Strike Eagle, just like the one Billy's got parked outside. Careful, boys, those armour piercing missiles really stick in your teeth.

Compo News

You need to wear a pair of snow-boots to get into the YS office, we're so snowed under with competition entries. So you've got to have each compo entry in a separate envelope, with the name of the compo marked clearly, or you just don't stand a chance. Und remember we have ways und meanz of making you write ze silly long titles ve invent.

It's a tramp's life, it really is. No, no, not working for YS! We mean US Gold's new Charlie Chaplin. Actually, it sounds like a lot of fun, making your own Chaplin silent movie, scripting, shooting and watching it play itself back to you. But you musn't run over budget, because the studio will shut you down! And the critics have got to like you too, or you'll get bad reviews! Oh dear, oh dear. Being funny is a serious business...

Wagga Wagga

The Konix 'guess the amount of waggles needed to trash a Konix joystick' compo proves that only the most wagga wagga can waggle for 27 days at a stretch. The piccy shows the £100 prizewinner, Maris Geert, standing in front of the Mannekin Pis, the world's most famous piddling statue. Maris reckoned on wagging for 26 days 19 hours before his Konix was out of 'waggle', which was pretty close, 'cos in fact the joystick managed a mindbending 27 days 19 hours, 1 staggering 17 604 000 waggles. Or, Frontlines wonders how his agaler felt after that?

IT'S A BEURMI!

"Eur! 'Elleur, ah am' Inspector Clouseau. Zis mus' be ze most baffling crame of ma career. Ah call eet ze case of ze Peenk Panthere! Eet seems zat Ariolasoft 'ave gotten zerahis to produce un petite game about my superlative detective skills avec un nom de Peenk Panthere. My man servant Kato will now present you with a screenshot... Aheurm! My man servant, Kato will now... Kato! Where ze dickens are you, you foolish little yellow type person? Kato...? Oh well, as I was saying... Aaaaaahhh!"

TROLL ON!

Ingrid Bottomlow is to be the first Gnome Managing Director of a software house, seen here in petulant mood with the Austin Family Singers, the previous owners of Level 9. Blimey, doesn't the look like Tzer? (Your friend Ed)

Fresh from picking the Ex Ed's mouselache from right under his nose, here's a few words from top British racing driver, Nigel Mansell. "...drone drone Grand Mansell here drone new game from Prix drone drone happy to be here, David drone drone. Er, thanks, Nige."

"Er hmn, Minister, we seem to have a problem... the switchboard is jammed with calls from the press. I have a reporter on the phone from The Sun, he says he'd like to know who that attractive young lady was, who you were seen with last night in the Jolly Japes Night club, and what your wife, Lady Hacker, will think of the matter. Minister, is there something you should tell me?"

"Good Lord, Humphrey! There must have been some mistake, it wasn't me - how could it have been... I was... er... I was at my gentleman's club all evening."

"Sadly, Minister, it seems they've asked there already - and you weren't... Were you?"

"Ah yes... Remember now, I was with my niece."

"But, Minister, you don't have one."

"Oh hell, Humphrey. Get me out of this one."

So now it's up to all you would-be statesmen. You are Sir Humphrey and you've got to think up the excuse to keep the press quiet and explain why the newly PM was raving it up in a snazzy nightclub. The ten best excuses we've ever heard (and believe me, I've heard some good ones - Ed) with a copy of Mosaic's latest game, Yes Prime Minister. Send your excuses on the back of a postcard to: Don't Expect Me To Wait Up For You When You Come Home In That State And Your Dinner's Burnt In The Oven Compo, Your Sinclair, 14 Rathbone Place, London W1P 1DE.

"Are you sure he's not a Daily Star photographer?" quips Jolly Jeffery Archer to Domark's Dominic Wheatley and Mark Strachan at this creative 'session' to advertise Not A Penny More, Not A Penny Less. "Nah, leave it ah, Jeffy," says Dom.

"Ee's just one of our own photos takin' publicity pics consolingly."

Remember the game, Jeffy? Eh? Mark joins in the joke, making fun of the fact that both he and Dom are wearing stripy shirts and Jeffy isn't. "Ho ho," laughs Jeff, "that's because I can afford proper shirts, nitwit!" Fortunately they all saw the funny side.

"Man the pumps! Splice the mainbrace! Oh dear, it seems that Elite's fab game Battleships has been sunk before it even reached duplication. Elite is carefully considering whether or not to release the game at all, and at the moment no release date has been set for the Spectrum, Commodore and the Amstrad versions. Weird, especially as we gave it our seal of approval as a probable Megagame on '88, eh? strength of the pre-release version! Oh well, here's hoping for a reprieve some time in the spring of '88, eh?"

● Gremlin Graphics are not resting on its own or anyone else's laurels, with this barrage of new releases for the winter: Gary Lineker's Superstar Soccer (a super footy game), MASK II (whaatt!), Blood Valley (a fantasy adventure), Basil The Great Mouse Detective (at last), Alternative Games (a bunch of sports simulations), Compendium (a load of board games), and lastly Masters Of The Universe™ (starring old musclebrain, He-Man™ himself).

● Argus Press Software's flagships this winter are to be Pacland™, based presumably on the well known Namco arcade chestnut, and The Hunt For Red October, a game based on Tom Clancy's spy story about hunting for Russian submarines in the Atlantic Ocean.

● After letting PCW showfolks have a go on Rampage, Plundering Hearts, Beyond Zork, Predator and Knightmare (see Future Shocks), Activision will be letting the rest of us see them in the next month.

● Another software house having a bit of a mass release this Christmas is Piranha, with Yogi Bear, Judge Death, Through The Trap Door (see Future Shocks), Roy Of The Rovers and Gunboat.

● The Power House is still chucking out the budget titles too, with Sword And Shield, Land Of Neverwhere and Mahem, all at the powerful price of £1.99, coming out in rapid fire around November.

•PREVIEW•PREVIEW•PREVIEW• FUTURE SHOCKS

EEK! Light the blue touch paper and run away very quickly because here comes Future Shocks.

720° from US Gold is a coin-op conversion of the chart topping dedicated arcade game of the same name. Its unique skateboarding format has you doing flips, jumps and slaloms, and is the closest thing to a real skateboard... without the bruises!

The skater earns tickets, or street creds (ho ho), skating on the city streets in order to compete in any of the four skateparks, where he skates against the clock to earn medals and cash prizes (greedy pig!). The player can choose which of the skateparks he competes in, and in which order, so every game is different. The four parks are the Downhill, Jump, Slalom and Ramp. The titles explain themselves but basically what they are is this — In the Downhill park you have to race down the slope as fast as you can and change direction quickly without falling off your board; in the Jump park you have to do the same, but this time jumping over water traps and landing on targets at the other side. Slalom park gives you the opportunity to stretch your knees and go around the obstacles without 'blowing out', or falling; and finally the Ramp park lets you show off your U-turn ramp tricks without painting the track with your face!

After each skatepark competition, it's back on the streets and a race against time to get into the next skatepark. Skaters can use their cash prizes to buy extra equipment to help them become Champion of the Skateboarding World. The game should be out almost by the time you read this, and at £8.99, you can probably still afford to get a pair of knee and elbow guards for those really heavy sessions! Gangway! (Whooooohhh!)

knightmare

Based on the exceedingly trendy TV show of the same name, Knightmare traces the footsteps of a blindfolded stooge through a fantastic TV dungeon, directed by the yelping voices of his accomplices who can see where, and on what, he's treading. And now here's Activision's Speccy conversion of this original role-playing game idea, in which you direct the stooge into certain danger in the self same dungeon. Probably priced at around £9.99, Knightmare will be going bump in the dark around November time.

RYGAR

The legend lives on. Arcade players will be delighted to hear that this old favourite has been converted for your Speccy by US Gold and its team, Tecno (who also converted Solomon's Key). The legendary Rygar, a man with more muscles in his earlobe than Arnie Schwatzenegger's got in his whole body, fights off wave after wave of snapping and slithering prehistoric monsters. The Speccy version should have lots and lots of levels, getting harder all the time, (oo-er) and should be out at the end of September for £8.99.

•PREVIEW•PREVIEW•PREVIEW• FUTURE SHOCKS

HYSTERIA

Don't panic! Let's not get hysterical! Calm down and get down from that lampstand. It's only Hysteria, the latest game from Software Projects, and it's much easier to thwart evil conspiracies from the comfort of an armchair.

An extinct primeval entity has been summoned through the barriers of time by a fanatical sect who can change our futures, by altering our past. (Sounds alright to me. Could they make me a millionairess, do you think? Ed) They plan to disrupt the future balance of power to their own advantage. And naturally you, a time warrior, have the honour of beating them to a pulp, mashing their brains in your scrambled egg and eating them for breakfast. But remember, you've got to catch and identify them first, and quickly, before your energy supply runs out. For this pleasure, it'll cost you £7.95, and you'll have to wait until October.

SUPER HANG ON!

An engine throbs between your legs, the wind's in your hair, Madonna rides pillion wrapping her thighs around your hips — and you're away babe, in Electric Dream's Super Hang-On. If you don't fantasize too much and pay attention to the game, you'll notice it's a coin-op conversion of the popular arcade game from Sega — a motor-cycle racing game just like Enduro Racer. It'll be roaring into the shops in November priced at £9.99.

BRAVESTARR

Swagger, swagger, "Get off your ass and drink your milk" 'cos here's US Gold's Bravestarr. It's a futuristic western, based on the cartoon and range of toys. John Wayne won't be appearing in it, but for £9.99 what do you expect? It should be out in October.

YES PRIME MINISTER

To: Prime Minister, Jim Hacker
From: Sir Humphrey Appleby
Re: Yes Prime Minister Game
Made by: ODE
Price: £14.95
Copies to: Bernard Woolley

As you are no doubt aware, having of course read the minutes of the meetings dated 3rd, 5th, 19th, 24th and 30th of August, of the Select Sub-Committee on Computer Games Manufactured To Lampoon Members of Parliament, there is to be a computer game based on your performance as Prime Minister. The committee resolved to allow the publication to go ahead, stating that, and I quote, "...the game could not possibly ridicule or lampoon the Minister in question more than he already does himself..." In this piece of electronic buffoonery, you have a crisis on hand, and a mere week to decide your strategy, make the country's decisions and ensure that it doesn't all end in Parliamentary chaos and scandal. All the time, how well you are coping is to be reflected by 'the polls', just like in real life. Ho ho.

ANDY CAPP

Do wot? Leave it aht! 'As it 'appens! Professionally unemployed person Andy Capp has finally got a job. In a computer game?!?

In Mirrorsoft's newest, Andy has got to scrape along for a whole week on his dole money. It's hard enough for most people, but Andy doesn't seem to have much chance of success, with the game set in locations such as the betting shop, the snooker hall and the pub. Communication is through speech bubbles and promises a laugh a minute. Mirrorsoft reckon it should be out in time for Christmas at £7.95.

FREDDY HARDEST

Hard as nails, tough as Tonka toys, but thick as a Prize yoghurt. That's Dinamic's new hero, Freddy Hardest. Freddy's a member of a counter espionage service somewhere out in space and after one or six too many, he writes-off his celestial rustbucket and ends up on an enemy planet. So Freddy has to search it to find a spaceship to steal, but to make things really tricky for the lad, he's got to figure out how to work the damn thing — oh and where's the filler cap? We'll have to wait till this one hits those top shelves (BLAM! That'll be £7.95 please!) to see how he gets out of it.

LAZER Tag

You've all heard of the amazing new game, Lazer Tag, where you don helmets and pistols and shoot all your friends and relatives with real lasers. Well, now US Gold have wacked it all on a cassette and you can play the game on your very own Speccy, without all that tiresome running around. It should be out in October for £9.99, so save your energy for then.

Do you fancy being a meknotech droid? Me neither, big boy. Well in Magnetron you are Quazatron hero KLP2, who has been transported to the space platform orbiting the planet Quartech. You have to destroy the reactors controlling those wibbly wobbly marauding alien hordes that get just about everywhere these days. Rock-It's Magnetron will be out in Nov. at £2.99.

MAGNETRON

SPITFIRE

Chocs away, batman! No, not you, Batman, we were talking to our 'batman', that chappy on the grind over there wavin' those jolly old bats in the air, don'tcha know? Spitfire is a crackin' new aerial combat simulator, from Durell, and it looks to be the fastest thing in the skies towards the end of November. You fly through the air scrolling left to right, up and down. Mind you, it's advisable not to go too far down, as you pile into the ground at a rate of knots, what? Haw haw haw! The animation is top hole and the V1's, or 'buzz bombs' as they're known in the trade, are as real as they can be and will blow you out of the sky sooner than you can say 'Jimmy Cricket'! I say, what? Priced at £9.95, this jolly old prang 'em up should be a real corker, what?

MEAN Street

It's the 21st Century and you're living in a leisurely world where roads are redundant but the M25, for want of something better to do with it, is now a Battletrack. (I thought it already was. Ed) You are a member of a band of outcasts whose idea of a good laugh is running people off the road whilst racing on the Battletrack. It's tough on the streets, and to prove it you have to beat all the other bikes off the track to win the grand prize. Incidentally, anyone with a record breaking score will be invited to a real life play-off in Mirrorsoft's office and have a chance to win a real Mountain Bike. Zowie! The game will be out in October for £7.95, so rev up your engines, bounce on your kick-start and vroom out to the shops and buy one.

Here is where the action takes place, on the Battletrack. In the old days the problem used to be steering around the other drivers without pranging anybody. But in the 21st Century, pranging them before they get you is the only way to survive! (Dan dan daaan!)

JACKAL

Like so many vertical scrolling shoot 'em ups, Jackal from Konami is a simple story of everyday folk. The folk in this particular coin-op conversion have one goal in life, and that is to barrel down the road, guns ablaze, in a heavily armed jeep. Do it every day, don't we? The thing about this one is that it's VERY fast! So if you like a lot of speeding on your licence, join their club! Jackal is out in November priced at £7.95.

COMBAT SCHOOL

If Combat School was your favourite game in the arcades, it'll soon be your favourite on the telly too! Ocean, never a slouch when it comes to the peachiest license deals, is as we speak creating the Spectrum version of this chart topping arcade smasheroony. As you can see from the screenshot, all the same gruelling tests are present as were on the coin-op, and boy! Do they look TOUGH? Just like the arcade game it's got the obstacle course, three different firing ranges, iron man race (a sort of boating race), arm wrestling, and finally a punch up with your instructor, a real hard geezer. That's seven games in one, and what better value could you ask for? What? You want them all to be good, too? Well, the pre-production sneak preview graphics we've had look very good, so the finished article must be brilliant. And the best news of all is that you'll only have to wait a teensie bit longer to play it for yourself!

FLOPPY DISCOUNTS.

If you're used to floppy discs with stiff prices, we have good news. Amstrad now sell 3" compact floppy discs for £2.99.

They're suitable for the Amstrad CPC 6128, PCW 8256, PCW 8512 and the new PCW 9512 and all other computers that have 3" disc drives.

Each disc carries up to 360K of data (on the 8512 and the 9512 this doubles to 720K).

Available through: ADL, Allders, Comet, Currys, Dixons, Eltec, Farnell, First Software, Laskys, John Lewis, Lightning, Norbain, Office International, O.S.T.A., Ryman, Northamber, P&P, Sandhurst, Wildings, and Hugh Symons.

Price correct at 1.9.87 but may change without notice.

SENT UP

While playing Firebird's mega-mega-mega-etc game, The Sentinel, myself and a friend, Rob Dickson, decided to print out the title screen. Imagine our surprise when the message 'SEEKING RELOAD BLOCK 42' printed out. Its ink colour would have been black, so it wouldn't have been seen on-screen.

Does this mean that some more levels will be made available for sale on an extra tape by Firebird?

Adam Sotheran
Romiley, Cheshire

PS We are currently on level 7253, code 21887706.

After talking to those likely lads at Firebird I learnt... absolutely naff-all. All Firebird will say is that it is possible that there'll be some extra levels for The Sentinel but it certainly won't be this year and possibly not next. Hang on a mo, maybe it was talking about that highly illogical game, Star Trek. Ed

VIVA L'ESPANA

It's my duty with Francisco Alexandre to tell you the truth. The Peeker, a graphic utility that was published in the last issue of your mag, was first published in a Spanish magazine — Microhobby, no. 78 — and is by Francisco Alexandre. Khalid Jamil is telling porkies. Enclosed are three photocopies of the original listings of the program which was, and still is "El Espia".

Sorry about my English, but I think it's better than your Portuguese.

Paulo J Lucas Martins
Viseu, Portugal

Hasta la vista! Ole, ole! Buanos Noches! Uno serviesio! So what's wrong with my Portuguese? Well, strong words Paulo (even if they were in Portuguese). I think it's over to Khalid to defend himself and come up with an exclamation, sorry explanation! Ed

FOLEY FOLLY

My 128 +2 is knackered! I am scrawling this to give your followers a piece of advice — don't buy Amstrad/Sinclair! They must be the worst computers around (well, except the Commodore +4). I've had EIGHT, and they all screwed up within a month. What's more, I lost (sniff, sob) an original of WAR. Good job it wasn't a decent game!

However I must praise the staff at the Cwmbran branch of Currys. I know they've had a lot of bad PR (They have? Ed), but they always replaced my machines, no problem. Eventually I asked for a refund, and was simply handed £159.95. I'm now saving for an Atari ST.

But it's not all doom and gloom. I still own a rubber-key 48K, and I can honestly say that it's a damn sight better than any 128 +2!

Axel Foley
Cwmbran, Gwent

Are you accident prone perhaps? I've never heard of anybody else who's had as much bad luck as you with their computers. It's possible that your Speccy+2 objects to being used as a skateboard when you're not playing games on it. Try using a plank of wood instead. Ed

ZILCH INPUT

How's about making the message length in Input Output a line (or six words) longer? Oh, and on the subject, I have sent no less than six ads in, and had no more than 0 (zilcho) printed. Sorry, but if you want my praise, you'll just have to do better.

Colin Campbell
Kilwinning, Ayrshire

If we increased the message length in Input Output by an extra line you'd have even less chance of getting one printed. We receive thousands of entries a month and there just isn't enough space to print them all. I think you've been pretty lucky getting none printed out of six. It could've been out of 200! But seriously we do try to print as many as we can — the best way to increase your chances is to write clearly and legibly in the allocated space and send separately to the Input Output section. Good luck! Ed

TORRYD AFFAIR

As I was teaching my half-Peruvian, lesser-spotted, threefooted budgie Pythagoras' theorem for the fourth time, I realised that you never, ever, print totally sane letters in your fabulous and really trendy mag. This is the third time I have written to you all at Castle Rathbone and my budgie and I both think it's about time you printed me. If you don't I'll have to take drastic action and sell up my stock of computer software, hardware, add-ons and join a monastery. I hear that the clothes they give you to be a monk are quite trendy. Anyway, back to the serious stuff.

Mike Ledingham, aged 1½

Torry, Aberdeen

I wouldn't like to see you get into any bad 'habits' so I've relented and printed your letter. Here's a joke to cheer you up. What did the Friar use to open the door? A monkey! Ha ha, thought you'd find that a bit orralaff! Ed PS Is your stock of computer software cheap budgie stuff by any chance?

SPOT THE MISTAKE

I am the leader of the Polish Mango Society. My colleagues are The Man, Slaphead 1, Slaphead 2 and Fartin' Martin. We all love Sique Sique Sputnik, Run DMC and the Beastie Boys. Hello to Lloyd and Smiley as well as Poofster Hesford, Boghead Jeffries and Kind Dude Squires. We also have another society. It is the Guru Appreciation Society. I'm particularly fond of mangoes myself. Oh, and I love bananas and fresh pineapple makes me drool too. And kiwi fruits are simply delectable, not at all like Kiwi men, though it has to be said (it does?)

KEEP ON THRUCKEN

May I offer my congratulations on your new Program Pitstop routines. As a new computer user I found them very interesting, and was well pleased with the end results. I have recently purchased a Spectrum 128 +2, after the children's 48K was accidentally wrecked (note date of birth — 18.8.42 — mine, that is, not the 48K). The sound routine by Tim Follin was a joy to hear. All members of the household look forward to your excellent publication every month — keep up the good work, and may we have more of the same.

M A Depear

OOPS UPSIDE...

"And we've just heard that Michele Alboreto has again retired from the Grand Prix... with reported stability problems..." "Er, actually he's upside down Murray." "...Oh my God! Michele Alboreto is driving upside down! This is just amazing! And so is Stefan Johansson in his McLaren! I don't think we've seen anything like this since..." "Actually, Murray, I think it's those wallies at Your Sinclair printing the screenshot for Grand Prix Simulator upside down." "...You don't mean the one on page 10, do you James?" "Of course I do, you senile old moron." "Well in that case I think they ought to give Simon Barnard a Transpotter Award!"

Simon Barnard
Herne Bay, Kent

Well spotted! The screenshot was indeed upside down and a Transpotter Award is on its way. This slight cock-up was all due to Peter, the Art Ed who thinks he's an Aussie. You should see his bilabongs! Ed

George and some information about him. We like the rough and rugged look!

Hope you can oblige.

Peter is 5/2", 16 stone has one blue eye and one brown and mousey hair. He loves the Bee Gees, hates physical exercise and spends a lot of time wearing cap sleeve T-shirts and strutting! As you can see he's also very photogenic... Ed You summed me up beautifully — I'm as rough and rugged as they come. If you want a good time you can't go far wrong with me. Pete He's also a pathological liar! Ed

GRAND PRIX BOOB

With regards to September's edition of YS, on page 10 in Future Shocks is a screenshot for a game called Grand Prix Simulator. I don't know about you but I think you must be a load of Grand Prix not to notice the screenshot's upside down. I hereby make a claim for a Transpotter Award.

If you stand on your head and read the review you'll find that the screenshot isn't upside down so I'm afraid you don't qualify for a Transpotter Award so ner! Ed

We are the two avid readers of YS and we were pleased to see the four tasty chunks in the September issue. We were wondering if we could have a signed photograph of Peter is remarkably similar to Smash Hits? Frontlines is similar to Bitz, posters in the middle, letters, Hack Free Zone is similar to Get Smart, T'zers is like Mutterings (well it used to be). Where does this influence come from? Does T'zer read Smash Hits? And why is T'zer called T'zer?

Steven Miller

Are you mentally deranged? What on earth do you want to bring Kevin Cox back for — he's already done enough damage. As for the similarity of YS and Smash Hits, I don't think they're at all alike. When have we ever had a pin up of Mel Gibson or Madonna? And the answer to your last question — why are you called Steve? I suspect it had something to do with your parents! Ed

Barry Bax, The Spax Cheeseman from Swindon, Wilts sent us this charming doodlebug of T'zer. (Don't think you're getting a prize from me now! Fume! Ed)

Stuart Oliver
Lawrieston, Falkirk

As much as I can't stand cruelty to animals I have to say that you're right. Marcus is a complete wally and did indeed make a terrible error in the Wolfan review. Still, I'm not sending you a Trainspotter Award 'cos I'd love to see you doing Freddy Starr impressions.

Ed

A 'ham' sandwich!

SORRY STATE

I was flicking through the Sept ish of this fabulous magazine of yours when on page 38 I read the headline 'What will you be playing this Christmas?' I have no choice, I'll be playing on my good old ZX Speccy, not a +3, not a Sega or Nintendo games console. You want to know why? (No, Ed) Because I've got no dosh to buy any of these out-of-this-world, super-duper things.

Yours feeling-sorry-for-myself
Neil Watson
Maryport, Cumbria

There's no reason to feel down in the dumps 'cos there's nothing wrong with the 48K Speccy. I'd personally rather play with that than any of the consoles — you get such a thrill after all that knob twiddling (Oo-er) when a game finally loads. Ed

YUM YUM YUM!

Hallo! I saw your picture in August's YS, and... er... hmmm... aaahh... er... (a few years later) er... hmmm... will... er... will you... ah... will you marry me? Oh! I'm already imagining our marriage, you

SMALL PRINT

If this letter gets printed I'll eat all my other computer mags with tomato sauce.

Robert Redfern,
Plymouth

You can eat those words, literally, you saucy devil you 'cos here you are in print! Ed

Please excuse the bad writing but I just chopped my hand off.

Patrick Walsh, Slough

Sorry I couldn't read your letter 'cos it was covered in blood! Ed with a pretty red dress, and I with a yellow suit.

Sandro 'Coach' Silva
Setúbal, Portugal
PS I'm 94 years old.

Sounds like you're colour blind to me! Other than that small defect you must have 20:20 vision, but I'm afraid you're not really my type — I go for the older man! Ed

SECRET AGENT

You are going to print this letter to make up for all the misery and agony you've caused me.

Remember that lovely little program in the Star Letter in your August edition? Well it drove my Speccy bonkers!!

Firstly it tried to convince me that it was a member of the KGB and was after a particular Commodore computer. Then it started hissing, and it wouldn't stop wriggling on the desk. And then, if that wasn't enough, it got me in a half nelson on my bedroom floor. I expect full compensation by making this your Star Letter — or else...

Sean Rowan
Castlebar, Co Mayo
PS Cheeky little liar, aren't I?

Leesen carefully 'cos I shall zay zis only wunce. Bog off! You certainly aren't getting the Star letter for telling porkies to a Double agent. Ed

HELD HOSTAGE

Thomas Price
Location unknown

Can I have all your games when you've finished reviewing them?
Monk D'Wally De Monk,
Castledawson
No you flamin' well can't! Ed

When my brother first heard of you, he thought you were a drink.

Robin Stewart,
Cirencester

Long, cool and fizzy! Yeah that describes me pretty well. T'zer. (More like sickly, orange and fattening. Marcus)

How could you be so cruel to a completely innocent human being? Allowing them to suffer such inhumane torture. You can't possibly do such a dirty deed and send Phil back here. I haven't actually got a +3 to hand but I could send you three of your fave games if you promise not to send him back. I couldn't bear it! Ed

WORRA COCK-UP

I think I spotted a spelling mistake on the Ocean advert for its latest Dinamic game. In the ad it says Game Over. Shouldn't this be "Game Oo-er?"

Barry Lanes
Hastings, Sussex
PS Don't call me a poor little pussy again — my mates were making jokes (dirty ones) for weeks.

Some people are so catty aren't they? Well, don't take any notice of your horrible friends just shout, 'sticks and stones can break my bones but words can never hurt me so bog off you nerds!' Ed

KINDLY LEAVE THE STAGE

This month's appallingly naff jokes come from Jon Freeman of Plymouth, Iain Habeshaw of Scotland and Jonathan Bell of Ashted, Surrey.

Q: Why don't worms have balls?
A: Because they can't dance.

Q: What's pink and hard?
A: Miss Piggy with a flick knife!

Q: Why did the boy feel a wally when he saw a bird?
A: 'Cos it went, 'twit, 'twit'

Groan! Surely you've got a naff joke better than this lot? If you have, send it in to Kindly Leave The Stage, Your Sinclair, 14 Rathbone Place, London W1P 1DE. All those printed win a YS badge.

DESERT ISLAND DISKS

This month's castaway, stranded on an island with nowt but his Speccy and a 50p photo booth to keep him company, is Craig McBurnie of Washington, Tyne & Wear. Take it away, Craig... (Oi! Bring that back! Ed).

Elite/Firebird

Must be the most playable space shoot 'em up game yet and I love jumping from star to star blasting mean Thargoids.

Leaderboard/US Gold

Refreshes the parts other golf simulations cannot reach.

Chaos/Games Workshop

Brilliant Dungeons & Dragons strategy game — not many people have played this, but those who have, all agree it's wizard (groan!).

Into the Eagle's Nest/Pandora

What a game for the start of a new company! Best of the Gauntlet clones. I took to this game quicker than you can say Slobodan Zivojinovic.

Auf Wiedersehen Monty/Gremlin

Boo hoo! Sob! The last Monty game, but what a way to end. Words can't describe it.

Ad Astra/Gargoyl

Golden Oldie shoot 'em up, king of the bunch. Superb game that always drags you back for more.

FA Cup Football/Virgin

No I haven't cracked. I like this footie game, even though it's very simplistic. Watching Tutts Clumps Reserves beat Liverpool 3-0 has you on the edge of your seat.

Formula 1/CRL

Vroooooom! Highly playable racing car simulation with a difference. Excuse me, I've got a Brazilian Grand Prix to win. Vroooooom!

What are your eight fave games? Write to Desert Island Disks and tell us. You could win a badge and three brand new games! Whoopee!

WEREWOLVES

Of London

AaaaaaOooooowww! In Viz Design's new Werewolves Of London, Phil South finds himself barking up the right tree, for a change.

Ooo! It was really weird, you know. One minute I was in my house drinking my cocoa and saying to my girlfriend what a lovely moon it was that night, and before I knew it I was standing in the woods next morning in ragged clothes surrounded by bits of policemen. Phew! Thank goodness it's only a game!

Werewolves Of London is the new game from Viz Design. Ariolasoft's arcade-adventure label, and in some respects is a follow-up to its recent Bride Of Frankenstein. What an ideal opportunity to pounce around London on all fours ripping people's throats out. (Sounds like a normal night out to me! Ed) The story goes that our hairy pal was cursed by the head of an aristocratic and rather Sloany family, and in order to rid himself of this curse he has to chomp all the big guy's descendants. Hmm, that's a daunting prospect even for the hungriest Big Mac fan! But our furry footed hero is game, so off he howls into the night, teeth gleaming, in search of bones to pick.

The game is similar in layout to Bride, except that it's much larger and there's much more of everything that made the last one such a blast. There's also a lot more people in the game — gun-toting cops, passers by, and of course the eight Sloany descendants you've got to finish off before you can have your pudding. In fact, there are so many people that on occasions you can get 'crowd scenes', where up to eight sprites are on screen at the same time, all milling around with their own preprogrammed objectives. Of course, this slows things down a bit, but it works and is an indication of how complex the game can be.

There are a lot of locations to explore, from the wooded sections of the park, through the city streets, as high as the rooftops, and deep down in the tube stations and sewers. In this massive map of the city you must comb the streets for your victims, and let's face it, anyone as hairy as him won't be short of combs! Ha! Ahem.

Okay, so Werewolves Of London looks to be a very good game, and in a game that deals with the horror genre, it's best to poke fun at the subject rather than go for out and out terror. Mainly because it's hard to frighten people with a three-quarter inch sprite, but it's possible that if you get people laughing at gruesome goings on, they sometimes get more scared by the idea behind what they're playing.

Werewolves will be out a couple of weeks from now, so keep your windows locked and... Oh yes, and never trust a man whose eyebrows meet in the middle! AaaaaaOooooowww!!

WEREWOLF?
THEREWOLF!

The manhole covers provide you with an entrance into the sewers... phew! Not the nicest smelling escape route, but one of the most convenient. You've got to find the coverlifter first, though.

Snacktime! Although you only have eight intended victims, you can chomp anybody in the game to top up your bloodbag. Even the police can provide fast food. But you have to make it snappy. (Groan!)

The policeman with keys will bang you up in choko if they catch you, which is tough luck if you haven't got a file or a coverlifter, 'cos then you're stuck there with no way out!

Cheese it, it's the rozzers! The coppers are out for your blood, which being as all the blood you've got is someone else's anyway, is a bit strange. If they shoot you three times, you're a stiff.

It's tough on the streets! Well, especially if you're a hairy murderer with lycanthropic tendencies. Some cops want to cross your palm with silver bullets, others would rather bang you in the slammer. The bag on the bottom left is your bloodbag, and the amount of blood in it is a meter of how lively you're feeling. If you cop a shot from the cops, it all starts pouring out from the bottom. Urgh! Worra mess!

And just as you chomp the last of the eight Sloanies, the cops come back and bang you up with a couple of engagement rings worth of silver! Tsk! In the vicinity of one of your intended victims, the next cross will flash at the bottom of the screen, and if you manage to chomp them, you get to keep the cross. You can chomp the coppers too, but you've got to be quick, or they'll shoot you!

Game Werewolves Of London
Publisher..... Via Design
Price..... To Be Announced

Leaping over the rooftops is no guarantee that you'll lose your pursuers, but it's worth a try. Going over them, down an alley and down the sewers or into a tube station might do the job, though.

Collecting bandages means you can patch up your bloodbag if you've taken a couple of bullets. But watch out, 'cos there's only a limited supply.

Non-player characters, anyone who isn't you, not only carry a nice warm blood supply, but also some very useful objects, like coverlitters, tickets for the tube, money, and torches.

Urgh! Horrible Sloany type here, looking for a chomping. Remember you've got eight of these to get through before you can rid yourself of the foul curse!

Negotiating the barriers in the tube stations can prove a bit tricky. You can either chomp somebody with a tube pass, or some money, or try to jump the barrier.

Trying to run to the next station down the tube tunnels without a torch can be hazardous to your health. It's a handy way of getting about but make sure you don't bump into anything nasty on the way.

HINTS 'N' TIPS YES TIPSHOP

Oh no, it's Phil South and his hints'n'tips again! Still, he does eat exceedingly good cakes...

Hello again, it's me again, your friendly neighbourhood hintin' and tippin' gutbucket, Pee Snout Esq. And in a packed program tonight we've got maps and hints for Bubbler, Enduro Racer, Nemesis, The Warlock, Game Over, Zynaps, Jackle And Wide, Survivor, Killed Until Dead, Micronaut One, Road Runner, Barbarian, plus Hacking Away and all our usual map giveaways, jokes, laughs etc. But enough of all this introductory bilge, let's get stuck into the tips!

Jackle and Wide

● It's nice to see that some people rated this corky little game, as you can see from this tip by Benjamin Wright. "To complete Jackle And Wide, first get the sea-sickness pill, as this stops the flood water in the first sewer. Pick up the vanishing hero and axe, but not the sparkling gem as this has no use. Cut a path to sewer 7 with the axe, go above it and drop the axe. Go to the side of the rock at the top and drop the vanishing hero: the rock will disappear. Take the key and sponges, but not the wine. Drop the key in keyhole 3 as this is the safe one, then travel up to the last sewer. Make sure you have the three large stones 'cos if you fire these at the floating spikes you regain your strength. Good luck!" And good luck to you too, Ben!

Road Runner

● I've just had a little run of tips on Road Runner (meep meep), in particular those from Craig Poland and Dean Rowley. Craig says that if you "hold the keys R, T, H and B down on the title screen, you have infinite lives." Well, that's nice, but what about all those dead ends on level 3, Dean? "Well here's a list of directions to avoid dead ends: up, down, down, up, up, up, down, down, up, down, down, up, down, up, middle, down, up, down, up, up, middle, middle, down, down, down, up, down, and down. Okay?" Okie dokie, Dean, and may you never run out of seeds.

Barbarian

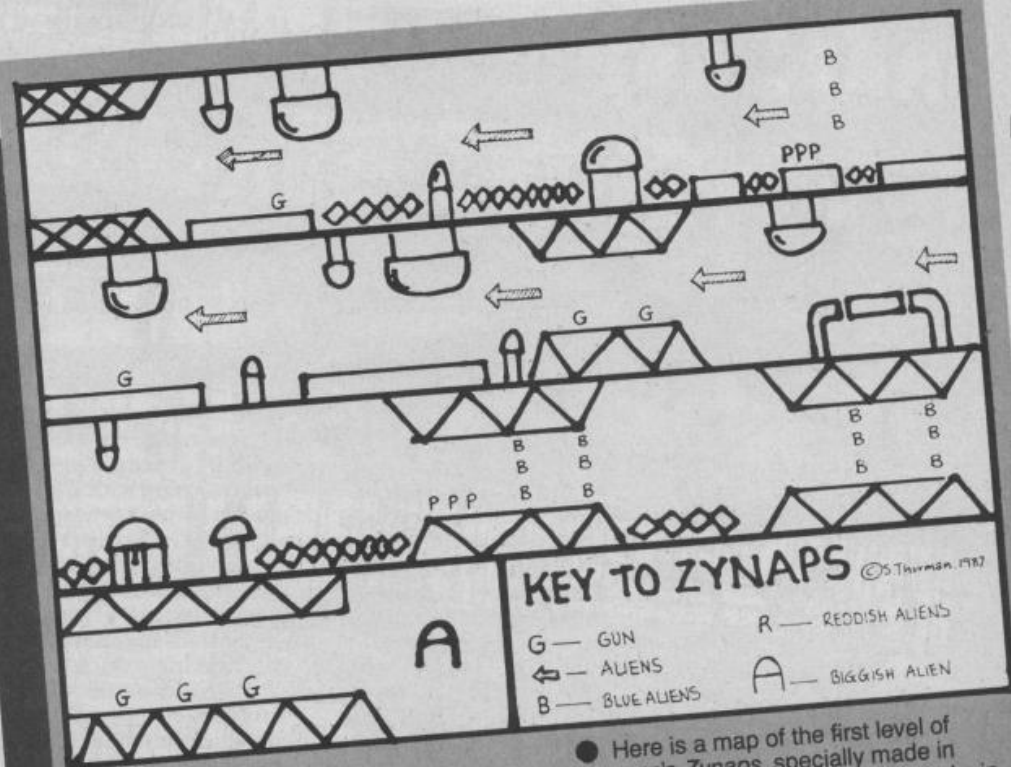

● Another very popular game which had some visible assets on the cover (fwoor goar yuk yuk yuk) was Barbarian. The Man With No Name from Belfast has discovered a neat little bug in the program which could allow you to win. "When you are about to fight, get a friend to press SYMBOL SHIFT (or Extended Mode on a +2) and the game will slow down! This is especially handy when fighting Drax himself." Thank you, Man, the badge is on its way. (Badges? We don't need no steeking badges!)

Panzadrome Map Offer

● The freebie maps of Sceptre Of Bagdad and Livingstone I Presume are so popular that I'm going to offer you another one this month. All you have to do to get your free Panzadrome map is send a largeish sae to Panzadrome Map Offer, Your Sinclair, 14 Rathbone Place, London W1P 1DE. This really is a corky map, done as screen dumps from the game. To make it even more worth your while, I'll throw in a full size photostat of Jaime Cristobal's Game Over map. Can't say fairer than that, can I?

● Here is a map of the first level of Hewson's Zynaps, specially made in Leicester by Scott Thurman. He asks in his letter whether anyone has a cheat mode of Antirad or Fighting Warrior. Any bright sparks out there found them out? Incidentally, I might have a freebie Antirad map in the next Tipshop. Interested?

TIP O' THE MONTH

Game Over

● An enormous mound of tipsters have been playing Game Over this month. Could it have anything to do with our fabby poster we gave away a couple of issues ago, I wonder? Still, whoor, eh? Anyway, it seems all these cheeky chappies have completed the game, once they'd torn their eyes away from the packaging, that is.

In order to get from the planet Hypsis to the second planet of Skunn you need a special password, a code number of 18024. This allows you to enter and play the much harder level on the other side of the tape. Many thanks are due for this excellent playing to the following tipsters: Paul Jennings, Billy Smith, Christian Erskine, Stuart Anstis, Gaz Dowling, Jeffery Savage, Alan Ponsford and Antony Espindola. As well as this vital piece of information, some other players even finished the game with enough juice left to give us a few tips. Robert Syeruncle was first with this, "Jump to the far side of barrels, in case when you zap them they turn out to be mines, or jump on top of them so you can shoot the laser turrets." Johann Sebastian Derboird had this to say, "If you find your passage blocked by a mine, shoot other things in the room until your energy is about to drop out then walk into it. This will remove it, so it won't be there when your next man comes up." And finally, Jake Thackeray's Chicken (I don't believe some of these names!) came up with this, "When you get to the giant Orko, make sure you have shields. Run through him whilst firing and lobbing grenades and you'll get through. This also works with the robots." Brilliant, guys, and keep those hints and tips coming.

Short Circuit

● Just a quickie on this, admittedly older, megagame from Scott Charlton. It seems that Scott (Ah... gee, ah... Mr Tracy...) has found a bijou little bugette in the program. "When you go next to a wall down a little from a locked door, and move up and away from it, you go straight through the door!"

Here's a diagram:

"See? I've marked an S to show where you have to stand before moving." Well thanks, Scott. Thanks also for the map, but we've already done one of them. Ta anyway.

Micronaut One

● Well done, Stuart Henny and Garry Sinclair, you are the first people to send me a tip for this fruity Nexus game. Take it away. "Collect the small clouds which float about the tunnels as these increase your energy. Destroy all the webs by shooting the grey blobs. Don't shoot the eggs, as it wastes energy. Only attend to the ETUs when they are at 'Danger' or 'Critical', or you waste time. The other objects in the tunnel are only there to get in your way, so don't waste energy shooting at them. The first three levels are the Tunnels Of Ceres, The Tunnels Of Ganymede and the Tunnels Of Phobos." Thanks boys, and may your ETUs never darken and may your webs be little ones.

HYPSIS

Game Over

SCKUNN

● It seems that the Spaniards are cleaning up in the Spectrum games business. And to prove it here's a map of the Spanish game, Game Over, by a Spanish tipster, Jaime Cristobal. In answer to your question, Jaime, YES! Please do send us more maps, but remember to enclose your address, 'cos we can't send you a badge otherwise. (P.S. Thanks to Ryan Copeland, who also sent me a terrific Game Over map. Sorry, but Jaime's was easier to print and slightly more complete, but I'll send you a badge anyway, 'cos you worked really hard on it. Okay?)

Anyway, enough of drawing accents and drooling maws; and let's see what's been hacked away in the past month:

Gremlin Graphic's has had its bouncing Thing hacked

HACK OF THE MONTH

EXOLON

The excellent Exolon from Hewson is next to fall under the axe as Nuneaton's Steffan Westcott takes the stage. Type in the program, RUN it, and play the game tape from the start. His program provides several features, most of which speak for themselves (but only with a Currah uSpeech connected!), with the ABORT GAME (press BREAK for it) provided, because you can get stuck on some screens if you are invincible. To avoid a feature, delete the line on which it occurs; the exception is GAME ABORT which 70-90 inclusive. Don't alter the order of the lines, or delete lines 60 or 140-150 because the program will then fall over in a steaming heap. For his second ever hack, I think it's rather good and in no way consider it to be 'all rather ho hum' as he expected. I look forward to seeing more of your work Steffan — keep it up!

Nemesis The Warlock

● You may remember that a while ago I had a query from Simon Wright on Nemesis The Warlock. Well since then I've been deluged with hundreds of solutions to Simon's problem, so let's pick one at random. Ah, it's another Simon, Simon Jones this time. And yes, he's got the solution right there.

"While reading through the July issue, I found a plea for help on Martech's Nemesis The Warlock from Simon Wright who said he couldn't get off of screen 2. In actual fact, it's very easy. Walk to the back of the long platform in the bottom right hand corner of the screen and jump straight up, until Torquemada's message comes up. When you enter the next screen, you should be standing on a platform above the pit! Hope this helps." Well thanks Simon, and let's have some more help like that. Nothing keeps the old column flowing like a good stock of regular tipsters!

Exolon

● A fine little cheat now, from CP Turner and RJ Fawley aka The Sheff Hackers, on Hewson's fab Exolon. "To use the cheat, first press key 2 for redefine keys. Next type Z O R B A for the different keys. Now repeat this, but with the keys required to play, and that's it! You now have infinite lives to blast anything in your path." Nice one. Now all I've got to do is discover how to play the game without getting killed billions of times!

Killed Until Dead.

● This really was one of the bestest games of the last couple of months, and hundreds of you have written in asking for help on it. Well, fortunately for me, I didn't have to finish the game, because three super tipsters have got it sussed already. These are Jesmond Vale (in answer to your question, yes,

Morning, merry funsters, and welcome to Dr Berkmann's Spectrum Relief Clinic And Patent Game-Snag Cure-All. The surgery's open, and Nurse Maughan's entertaining the patients out in the waiting room with her usual fishnet-clad wit and repartee. And what a motley crew we have in today! Take two aspirins and call me in the morning. Ha ha, just my little joke. First behind the screen is Malcolm Austin from Ipswich, who's having dreadful probs with Atlantis' ripping little Wally-clone Sceptre Of Bagdad. How does he get into the nest? Well, as you'd expect, it's more complicated than you'd expect (Eh? Ed) You'll need to fly over to the other island and into the room with pillars. Then it's up the rope (for which you'll need the flute — geddit?) and out onto the balcony. You'll find out how to get rid of the bird from one of the clues displayed in the game, then jump into the screen and you'll appear in a sort of nested screen, where you'll find some wings. Move either way off the screen and you'll find yourself by the nest. Then catch the bee with the insect net — you'll need it later...

Thanks Malc, and call me again if it doesn't clear up.

CURSE OF SHERWOOD

A desperate letter from Andrew Dampier, who's been driven barmy by Mastertronic's Curse Of Sherwood. "I would be able to sleep better if you could give me any tips, maps, POKES anything (please!)." A desperate man clearly, but I'm a kind old family doctor at heart, so here's a clue or two. For one thing, you won't need the shield or the scroll with the map — they're useless. To cross the river, you'll need the ice wand, which'll freeze it over. And you'll only get through the teleport door by smashing it down with a club! Okay, Andrew?

DR BERKMANN'S CLINIC

BATTY

Last month's game-on-the-cover has also caused a few problems. Adrian Williamson rang in to say that he can't get past level three — a common problem, as

It took us days of practice before YS adman, Julian Harriott, finally reached level five one lunchtime. (Dr B got there a few hours later.) So how to do it? It's all really a matter of positioning, speed and immense luck. Always start with the bat just under the left hand side of the central channel, and try to hit the ball back at the same angle each time. This way you may be able to batter away the two pink bricks on the right and on the third shot sneak the ball around the side and up to the top. Then, if all goes smoothly, you can sit back and watch your ball batter the bricks away — well, those that will actually allow themselves to be battered. The red ones, like Captain Scarlet, are indestructible. Good luck!

GOOD EGG

An interesting letter from the Games Wizard of Gilfach Goch (that sounds like a nasty cough) in South Wales. He feels that we should have a similar service to the troll supremo's Kind Souls column, and he's volunteered to offer tips and hints on any of the following games: Army Moves, Saboteur II, Bruce Lee, Flash Gordon, Spellbound, Space Harrier, Olli & Lissa, and Enduro Racer. What a Good Egg!! His address is 37 Bryn Hedd, Hendreforgan Est, Gilfach Goch, South Wales CF39 8UT, and remember to include an sae if you want to get a reply! If anybody else fancies being a Good Egg, write to me with your list of conquests, and we'll put YS readers in touch with you!

HELP!

Two snagsters are stuck in Code Masters' Vampire this month. Brian Cohen can't get the cross key across the chasm. If he carries the nut shaped object, he gets fried by the pedal power generator — if he doesn't, he can't jump far enough.

Martin Clark has picked up all the objects to operate the generator (hammer, stake and bolt) but still can't get it to work. Any ideas?

If you've got the answers to these, or you too need the Clinic's help, write NOW to Dr Berkmann's Clinic, Your Sinclair, 14 Rathbone Place, London W1P 1DE. Anyone mentioned wins a badge!

I am absolutely 'spiff') of Newcastle Upon Tyne and completely separately those two wondersnouts Ian O'Connor and Karl Fudge of Fife. Unfortunately I think that giving away the whole secret in my column is a bit like ripping out the last page of a whodunnit, it will spoil the fun. But if you'd like the Killed Until Dead Factfile, compiled from the three chaps' hints, then send a sae to Killed Until Dead, YS Tipshop, Your Sinclair, 14 Rathbone Place, London W1P 1DE. It tells absolutely everything, and is exclusive to YS! Order yours today.

So that's about it for this month, except to say, keep those hints and tips coming. The more the merrier. If everyone out there sent me a tip... well, I could still only print eight pages, but wouldn't it be fun to open all them envelopes. (No! Marcus) Okay, get weaving, and I'll see you next month. Byebye.

ENDURO RACER

● Geoffrey Fox must be the only bloke in the known universe who actually thought of making a map of this superest of race games. It is actually quite a good idea, because you can anticipate the next turns as you go along the course. Brilliant Geoff!

If you have any hints, tips, maps, POKes, cheats, or general playing form for any new games just send them in to: Phil South, YS Tipshop, Your Sinclair, 14 Rathbone, London W1P 1DE. Any bits we print in the Tipshop win an exclusive "I've Got Big Tips" badge, which is not available anywhere else on earth. Wow! Cor! Phew!

● Dr Berkmann tells me this is a very useful map indeed, as Bubbler is, in his words, a "blimmin' hard game!" It helps to know where you're going, so you can concentrate on moving about. Many thanks to Matthew Carrier for this, plus these POKes: 38797,0 gets rid of all aliens, 57515,0 for infinite lives, 57516,0 for infinite time and 57517,0 for fun. Nice one, chum.

Click, bzzzzzzttt! Well, hello there, my fine young Italian bananas. And how are yooooou today? Good! I'm a bit fine and frootly meself.

I must say my retirement is really coming along. Do you know that Marbella must be the wibbling, T-shirt capital of the world? I must say that my bank balance isn't the only thing with no visible means of support! Still, enough of this clever-trousers horseplay, on with the business, or T'zer will stop my pension and I'll have to buy a house in Walsall instead.

And speaking of Walsall, that's where our first guest doesn't come from. Ho ho. In fact he ain't never been there. But wasn't it a funny joke? (No, Geron with it. Ed) His name is Niclas Carlenius from Sweden, or Sverige as they call it over there. He's 13 years old and thinks he's pretty much the bee's nose, he says that most of the hi-scores in the Heroes suffer from being rubbish, he's got a score of 920,130 on Bombjack and he sent a real picture of himself "not one of an elephant!" Well, heavens! As if I'd print a picture of an elephant. He must think I'm completely hatstand.

Anyone remember that fab Uridium map we had printed in the old Hack Free Zone? Well the guy that did it, David Johnson (the ubiquitous Dave from Didcot), has just sent me a note about his Head Over Heels score of 76,880, liberating 4 planets and becoming a hero. Well thanks for that, Dave, and keep that Didcot nice and shiny, my little print buffer!

And now, finale! Sorry... And now finally, we have my favourite little bacon sandwich, John R Fallows. Ho ho. Well fallo there, John! And he says here that he's completed Auf Wiedersehen Monty and he hopes it isn't the last in the series. Well so do I, John, me old shipyard, 'cos if there's one thing I like in me games it's little furry creatures like moles and hamsters. Or even Phil. Tee hee. Sorry, Snouty.

And that is what you might call 'IT'. I've got to go because Britt would like some 3-in-1 rubbed on her chest and (sigh) I suppose I have to do it (yibble yibble).

See ya in church!
Click, bzzzzzzzzttt!

HANG TEN!

YS COMPO

Win Win Win!

Skate away with a brand-new hi-tech skateboard, plus accessories and 20 copies of US Gold's 720!

Hang what? Oh, both feet off the front of the skateboard. Won't you fall off if you do that? Anyway, enough of this ... Hey wow, suckers, how's about this def new skateboard, eh? Well def! Ultra def! Positively hard of hearing, hepcats!

720° is Atari's latest and greatest arcade smash, currently being converted to the Spectrum by US Gold, and looks to be one of the radest games ever! It's a one or two player skateboarding game with sporting and street-style action. It takes place in a sort of Skate City, where all surfaces around the player are skatable, providing endless scope for wacky and radical moves. The player selects which part of the city to skate in, and so every game is different, starting and ending in any part of town you want. You compete for medals, and the player who has the most at the end of the game is the winnah! Phew!

In this exclusive YS/US Gold compo, you stand to win the hi-tech terminally earless skateboard we mentioned, plus a US Gold ultra-white sweatshirt and a copy of the Speccy version of 720°, matching elbow and kneepads and a helmet that makes Darth Vader's look like the YS waste paper bin! The runners-up (those who don't win a skateboard, so they have to run) don't slouch away empty-handed either, 'cos they take 20 copies of US Gold's brilliant coin-op conversion, 720°, the skateboard arcade game with a touch of class.

If you want to own this crucial merchandise, it's a cinch! All you have to do is spot the ten differences between the pictures on this page, and ring them with a blue biro. Simple innit? Just complete the coupon and send it right away to: I'm So Well Def I Can't Hear A Word You're Saying Compo, Your Sinclair, 14 Rathbone Place, London W1P 1DE.

- Employees of Dennis Publishing and US Gold caught entering this compo will have their skateboards confiscated.

Slaine

the King

Phil South dons his hero harness and goes into spasms over Martech's axe wielding 2000AD arcade adventure, Slaine The King.

It's easy to see why Slaine was such a popular strip in the cult science fiction comic 2000AD. Loads of gore, action, monsters and scantily clad women, what more do you need? In the comics, Slaine was a warrior king from England's distant past, whose main interests in life were people — you know, slaying them, drinking and eating feasts with them or just plain looting them. The kind of guy who'd just as soon rip your liver out through your nose as ask you the time of day. But there's a bit more to Slaine's character because, you see, he's 'warped'. No, I don't mean someone left him out in the rain and he dried out in a funny shape. I mean he's got a warped personality, and on occasions he's given up to 'warp spasms', where he changes shape into a grotesque monster and goes completely berserk. Bit like the Ed, really. (Growl! Ed)

The problem facing the programmers of Slaine, Creative Reality, was how to take the warped nature of Slaine's personality and translate it into a playable and absorbing game. What it came up with was a wholly original game concept called Reflex. The system consists of a series of menus, which the player points to as they flow or slide in and out of a window on the screen. In Slaine The King's case, a severed hand hovers in space in front of a representation of Slaine's mind. Words hover back and forth, representing the thoughts floating through our hero's warped brain. Use the hand, and you've got to be quick, to point to a thought before it flits out of sight, and then Slaine will do whatever it was you selected. This method of input is a little strange but once mastered it becomes second nature.

But Slaine isn't all destruction, death and decapitation. There's a point to it all, and that's to solve a mystery. Slaine has been asked to help, for a large fee, to discover why people have been disappearing from the village. In your quest to find out exactly what is going on, you have to beat people up, bribe them for information, and explore the furthest little crevices of the surrounding villages and terrain. As you move from location to location, you encounter (ie. speak, kiss, kill or drink with) villagers, explore buildings and collect useful objects. With the obnoxious Ukko by your side, you've got to react quickly and think on your feet if you're to discover the secret. But watch your step, 'cos the terrifying solution involves dark forces, not to mention Half Dead Druids, beyond your wildest nightmares.

The game feels like a big freewheeling comic strip, and has all the gruesome slimy detail of the original story, as well as being an original arcade format, and there ain't many of them. It's big adventure too, with all the depth and detail you'd expect from a proper adventure game. If you like your action gritty, and your adventures mindwarping, you only have one choice. Seek out Slaine The King and go berserk.

Publisher	Martech

When you examine your inventory, or uncover objects, they appear on the screen as a small window. Here we see a torch, a harness, a spade, some fleas, a pack of cards and some dice. In order to discover your objective, you have to manipulate certain objects to make things happen.

Faces and action shots involving Slaine and Ukko allow you to see what's going on. If you punch Ukko, which you do a lot if you've any sense, you see it happen. When Ukko speaks, you see his grinning face at the same time as his words. Urgh! Worra slimeball!

The villagers may attack you from time to time, but don't worry about it. They just forgot they hired you in the first place, that's all. Just rough 'em up a little, and who knows, you might gain some vital information.

These'll come in bloody handy! The severed hands, dripping blood, are your cursor which you point to thoughts in Slaine's warped mind. Control is a little tricky at first, and you find yourself missing words or bouncing around the window. But it's worth the effort.

This option "Hit Ukko" may seem a little bit mean to your hapless sidekick, but he is an inferior and irritating little runt, and probably did something to deserve it anyway. Still, he might lend you some of his money if you duff him up enough!

As you select a thought with the gory hand, it fades out, and the thoughts in Slaine's mind are rapidly replaced by a new set of options for you to choose from. There are several submenus for each of the options you see here, so Slaine can express himself in a wide variety of ways.

The intros to each location, called room descriptions in the trade, are sited up here in this scroll. This gives you a constant readout of what location you're currently occupying in well over 100 possible 'rooms'.

Text windows pop up when something happens in the game, telling you what somebody has said or what they are doing. The amounts of text in the game are enormous, far more than in the average comic book story.

This portrait of Slaine and Ukko is purely a decorative background for the windows to sit on, but it gives you a taste of the quality of graphics you can expect from Slaine The King. Let's face it, a Slaine game without good pics is like an axe without a handle.

The scene windows pop up to give you an idea where you are standing, and give the game a real comicbook feel. The graphics are drawn in the genuine Slaine style with great attention to detail, and really add to the fantasy atmosphere.

To set the atmosphere, and to give the game a real comic book flavour, the scenes are illustrated in windows too. For instance, here we have Slaine and Ukko sitting around the fire, and walking along the road. There's also the disused mine and of course the blighted village.

SOLOMON'S KEY

US Gold/£8.99

Phil Absolutely brilliant. That's the phrase that hopped, skipped and jumped into my brain after playing this game for a couple of hours at a stretch. Solomon's Key is a conversion, by Probe Software, of the fab and popular arcade coin-op machine by Tecno, a very addictive arcade strategy game. To be perfectly frank, coin pickers, it's as corking a rendition of an arcade as you'll find anywhere. And is it addictive? Well, I've had to stop writing this review at least twice for 'just one more go', so you can take it as read that it's more addictive than peanuts or digestive bikkies! (Yum!)

Although a sort of platform type, it's actually more strategic, as during play you can place the platforms and break them up as you go along. Choosing where you put the platforms, to allow you a leg up or let a baddie drop, is crucial and though this might sound like Slow City, it's actually a very fast process once you get the hang of it. You can pick up and drop platforms on either side, one up or one down any way you like. Except for the gold bricks, which are indestructible (tsk!), all of the bricks can be crunched or dropped anywhere on the screen.

Your objective is to get the tiny gold key, found in a hard to reach spot on the screen, and then go to the exit on that screen, whereupon you're whooshed off to the next level. (Yipe!) Now this seems easy when you explain it like that, but in actual fact it's very hard indeed. You'll need a lot of goes to learn the technique for each room, and it can get quite infuriating. But the amazing thing is you never lose your temper or get bored with doing it. No matter how close you were to the exit before the time ran out, you still press the start button for one more crack at it! Aaaagghhh!

The graphics are brilliantly done, if a little anaemic in colour, but really well animated. The gameplay is, I s'pose, similar to something like Boulder Dash/Rockford's Riot, where you're hopping around the screen collecting treasures and keys before heading for the exit. The main difference here is that if you walk off the end of a brick you'll fall, but at least you can fall all the way down the screen and not die.

Oh dear! I can see that for the next couple of weeks I'll be sneaking off for quick rounds of Solomon's Key, and I confidently predict that you will, too. If any game we've reviewed recently deserves to be a smash hit, this one does. Buy it!

Let's hear it for the YS team of reviewers. They're keen, mean and itching to get their fingers on the joystick, to bring you the good, the bad and the brazilliant in latest games.

YS Seal Of Approval

All games reviewed in Screenshots are finished products.

Here's your bonus timer, which ticks off the seconds it takes you to finish the screen. If you can collect the key and treasure in the room before it reaches zero, then the timer numbers are added to your score.

This attractive little trinket is one that you learn not to grab. If you pick it up, it rings and an angel of doom will chase you around the room.

This character wanders back and forth across the top of the page. Wait until he's gone by, jump up onto his level, drop a brick and hop on it into the exit.

Here's our hero, tromping through the dungeons in search of gems and baubles. He can create bricks to jump on, or zap them if they're in his way.

Here's the key to your escape, hidden among all these bricks. You have to get this before you collect all the gems and baubles.

RECUTOR

You, and a buddy in a twin ship, if you play two player, are flying up through a vertically scrolling landscape. Coming down towards you are a handful of heavily armed space bboxes in their custom-built ships. Okay? Now what makes this different is that there's only a few aliens shooting at you, and you've only got a smallish cannon to hit 'em with, so you've got to be economical with your shots, and accurate if

Having sweated your way through each wave of fiendishly weaving death-dribblers, you're faced with a massive ship about six times as big as your own! Having blasted that to golden shred, you would expect to be let through into the next level, right? Wrong! The ship compacts and starts blasting at you and you've got to fight it before you can get through. Phew!

[illegible]

Flying through the airborne spacejunk on your way to certain doom is more fun with two players. Best played with a friend to back you up, it's the skill needed to hit anything and avoid being hit that makes Xecutor a game for hardened spacers only.

PLEXAR

Mastertronic/£2.99

Tony W A long, long time ago a race of clever dick beings known as the Miracle Engineers decided to build a fantastic new artwork of roadways on the planet of Plexar. This system of pathways was constructed entirely out of crystal, and supported at the ends by massive diamond towers. It was the most advanced, beautiful and (if used in the wrong way) deadly construction in the universe.

Unfortunately the Engineers were not as smart as they thought. A passing plague wiped them out, and no one was left who understood how to operate the roads.

Years later a new race of beings inhabit the planet, but the workings of the crystal roads are beyond their primitive minds. Every so often a candidate is chosen to journey through the maze in order to placate (they think) the gods. Guess who it is this time!

Yes, this is Plexar, a Trailblazer-like race down a series of vertically scrolling roadways. Avoid the gaps, use the special features, all in true Trailblazer style. Survive the first two sections and it's into the Tower, which is seen from above à la Shadow Skimmer. Move down the roads, follow the arrows and avoid the traps. And that's about all there is to it.

The 3-D moving pathway section, although drawn well, is far too easy to complete, and the overhead section is a little on the simple side too, as long as you watch the energy levels. Complete a section, then it's on to another part of the planet for another bash (and new backgrounds). As I said, the graphics are great, just what you'd expect from Paul (Terminus/Glass) Hargreaves — highly detailed and well used throughout. If you take away the graphics, though, there ain't much of a game left. Still, at budget price it's worth a go just to see the marvellous detail Paul has managed to cram into the program. If you enjoyed Trailblazer this is definitely for you.

YS CLAPOMETER

Entertaining Trailblazer clone with more depth and better background graphics throughout. A bit on the easy side though.

SAMURAI TRILOGY

Gremlin Graphics/10.00

long line of bash 'n' slash simulations to hit the TV screen. This time it's Samurai Trilogy from Gremlin Graphics. It's been out on the Commodore for some time but now Speccy users have the dubious honour of sampling the delights of Eastern promise. Frankly I'm surprised that the Samurai legend has never been chosen before for conversion to computer, the oriental tough guy image is perfect for a realistic punch 'em up. Unfortunately you have to wade through an ordinary Karate sim, and a Kendo adaptation to get to the Samurai fight itself — but it's worth waiting for.

The program begins with a smart front end which leads to the language selection bit. Try Deutsch just for a giggle! Then you have to choose whether to practice or fight in one of three martial arts. But now comes the dreaded multi-load system that takes a lot of the addictivity out of the game. Each event has to be loaded separately, so be prepared to wait a while. Before each fight you have the chance to assess, though it's only guess work, your opponent's key attributes, and adjust your own accordingly. There's a long list of opponents to choose from, but selecting weaker chaps will lose you favour points from your trainer, Chu Yu. (Same to you! Ed)

Once a selection has been made, you begin your training program, by selecting three of the twelve fitness routines. These include Meditation, Sparring and Reflex training. It's a pity that you only get to choose the routine and not to actually watch it! Next your fight tactics have to be chosen. Distribute five given points between four defence tactics, then do the same for attack.

After all this messing about it's time to begin combat. To reach the position of Samurai Warrior, several opponents in each of the three events must be fully defeated. A program such as this stands or falls by the quality of the animation, and I am afraid that Samurai is a touch too slow and jerky for my taste. But the chunky size of the well drawn characters and the natty oriental backdrops lend a touch of class to this otherwise ordinary slash 'n' hack game. Me? I'll stick to Barbarian. See you at Chopemup Temple sometime.

YS CLAPOMETER

A decent stab at bringing two new bash 'n' slash simulations to the Speccy, plus yet another Karate game.

Firebird/£7.95

Rachael Something bizarre's happening in the old bazaar. Baghdad? That's no way to talk about yer mum, son. But what a way to Cairo on. There's evil Arabs aplenty pitting themselves against the three heroes — or rather two heroes and one heroine — of this all-shooting arcade-adventure.

But if I say 'arcade-adventure' that could suggest naff little graphics and plenty of leaping and dodging, with lots to do with arcade, but precious little to do with adventure.

Mystery Of The Nile is much more a case of characters on a quest.

So put Willy out of your mind and think instead of Wally and his ilk. Your heroic trio here are big, chunky sprites, smoothly animated as they pursue their mission in the Middle East. So select your controls and step on down Nevada Smith — who swears he's never been Indiana — Al-Hasan, your Arab ally, and Janet, the plucky dame.

Actually, it's Janet who you encounter first, alone and aloft, atop a balcony amidst the minarets (coo, dead poetic, what?). Time for a little ledge leaping as she hurtles for her ammunition. Each character has its own weapon and in the case of Janet it's bombs.

Once she's picked up the explosives — which resemble a pile of profiteroles — she's ready to do some arcade-adventuring. Don't expect to have to discover lots of obscure objects and build your own fusion reactor to get off the screen, though. There's nothing so intellectually taxing in this game. Instead, you just have to kill enough dastardly Arabs to progress.

In fact, it won't take long to learn that the secret of finding Abu-Sahel and the Jewel of Luxor (though it don't say Luxor or what) is to keep on killing. But it's not quite so thick-eared as it sounds. You have to learn where the enemy appears from, so that you can deal with them efficiently. And be prepared to dodge gunshots and the odd stick of dynamite, because they won't all sit around and wait for you to play top-the-towelhead!

Three screens into the game and you run into the next of three daredevil adventurers. Al-Hasan — but Paul Simon calls him Al — follows and once you've picked up his weapon, an umbrella which he uses to deadly effect, you can change between characters with the number keys.

Two more screens and you're off to Nevada — Smithy that is (handsome and heroic — obviously some relation). He packs a six-shooter (Or is he just glad to see Janet? — Ed) which he picks up in the next screen. So now you've rounded up the trio and things really start to get tricky.

Heroes they may be but brainy... forget it! In times of stress they keep cool... so cool they get in each other's way! Talk about stoopid! The only way you can prevent yourself shooting, stabbing or blowing up one of your allies, depending on who you've got under control, is to work out the order in which they follow each other.

Later screens introduce nastier problems, such as assassins on roof-tops and attacks from both sides. It's at times like this that you'll need a double-ended defence and a few extra fingers as you switch between characters. Each screen has its own particular problems, and by the time you've fought your way to the end of the tenth, you'll be glad of the save facility which means that further games can start without too much dull repetition.

The mystery of Mystery's origin is easily solved — Made in Spain sort of gives it away. But like so much Spanish software, while this is great on the graphics, it's a little lacking in terms of playability. You have to be so swift with the number punching if you're to defend yourself that only professional typists need apply for the quest.

No, that's not fair. It's tough, but it can be beaten. I know because there were times when I was sure I'd never get off a screen... and then I discovered the secret and off I went. So get the sand in your sandwiches and camel-long on this Middle-Eastern massacre. And don't stop what you're dune till you reach your just deserts.

Dealing with this roof-top sniper isn't made any easier by the failure of the instructions to tell you that Nevada shoots upwards when he's kneeling down. You can then pick off the pest — but only if you can find a way of keeping Janet and Al out of the way. Other vital info the inlay omits is that the range of Janet's bombs depends on how long you keep the fire button depressed.

be a straight copy of the big G, but fails on every count. The underground levels, the elf, the warrior, the leys, the monsters, the boredom are all here in this cheapie. Unfortunately, so too are a catalogue of bad programming techniques. There's a horrible jangly noise when playing that can't be turned off, jerky scrolling, mysteriously vanishing character squares (including your chap at times!), no quit keys so you have to wait ages to be killed before starting again, no joystick option. Add to this no loading screen or title music, and all but impossible gameplay, and you have a poor package. Even at £1.99 it's not worth the dosh, Tosh. Never mind Dawnssley, call it Yawnssley and you're on the right track!

I can't see that Evening Star will be a runaway commercial success, steam trains being something of a minority interest. But it's certainly in a different class from Southern Belle and, well, you never know — it may just gather fans from gamers as well as those funny little chaps in anoraks. All aboard!

A red hot and steamy trainsim that's on the right track. Challenging and tricky, though less than startling graphically.

How he got to be in this state is all part of the plot. Carlin, for it is he, took a trip to the planet Zuggi to buy a new defence system for Earth. Unfortunately a gang of muggers pounced on him on his way, and not only nicked his top secrets, but also most of Collecting Carlin's (black label) togs is what the game is all about. Before you can enter certain buildings Carlin has to cover his embarrassment, but of course he has to find something first! Streaker is basically a Spellbound clone. It even includes its own menu selection window which works well. Where it differs, and where it is original is in the use of the different opening times of some of the buildings. The game is played in 'real time', so shops or pubs are only open at certain times, which is where the tricky part of the game starts! Good, clear graphics, nice animation and the large playing area make the Streaker the best Bulldog since Feud. It's not easy, but bear with it for some naked entertainment.

Lean Mean Streakin' Machine

Win Win Win!!

10 copies of Mean Streak and 25 ultrahep Rocker Filofaxes to be won Weeelll, beebop-alula a-she's mah bay-beh! Hey kid! Are you mean on the streets? When you zip on yer leathers and roar off on your chopper, do girls just swoon away? Do they wear beehive hairdos and say things like: "Is that Johnny's ring you're wearing?" "Uh-huh!" "Yes, we see!" and burst into spontaneous harmony? Standing next to your bike, do you make Elvis look like Shakin' Stevens? Do you make James Dean look like the Archbishop of Canterbury? You do? Okay, cool cat, we wus only checkin'.

In Mirrorsoft's new game, Mean Streak, it may be the 23rd Century, but you've still got a bike and a comb in your back pocket. And although the M25 is now called the Battletrack, and you risk your life daily against a bunch of deathdealing outcasts, you've still got a quiff so rigid it would break a swan's wing with one blow! You're a mean rider, and you can take it.

And now, with the help of Your Sinclair and Mirrorsoft, you can be the heppiest cat this Century, with 10 prizes of the Mean Streak game for your Spectrum and Rockin' 'N' Rollin' Rocker Filofaxes, plus Rocker Filos for 15 runners-up... Listen bud, these items are so cool people chill their drinks in them! So what do you have to do to get all this instant (just add water) street cred, hmm? It's a cinch, daddio, 'cos all you gotta do is look at the word square on the coupon, and having found all the words listed, ring them with a pen. You know how to use a pen, kiddo? All reet, all root, alright! Then with the letters you've got left, arrange them to get the answer to the question "What do you need to complete Mean Streak?" Simple eh, Rockers? Fill in your name and address and send the whole lot, or a photocopy, to: Weeeelll, Bee Bopalula She's Mah Baybeh Comp, Your Sinclair, 14 Rathbone Place, London W1P 1DE.

And, as they say in the famous tune, "that is all". Okay, grease-spots, get your motors runnin', head out on the highway, lookin' for adventure, whatever comes your way!

FLUNKY

Piranha/£9.95

Mike So what's the name of the game? Flunky, you dumb cluck, can't you read? And what's it all about? Well, just a simple matter of getting the Queen's autograph, that's all. To do that you first have to get Charles, Di, Fergie and Andy to scribble their illustrious signatures in your book. You'll also have to light all the fires in the Buckingham Palace fireplaces. Easy-easy-easy... here we go, here we go, here we go...

Hang about. Why is that palace guard pointing his weapon at me? Doesn't he know I'm on his side? Oy, pal, I work here too, you know! BANG! Blimey, not much point trying to reason with him. Must have an IQ equal to the average house brick.

I may be new at the job but I'll soon get the hang of the palace layout. Through the first door is Andy and Fergie's apartment, through the second door live Chas and Dave, sorry Chas and Di, and through the third door... BANG!... erm, yes, obviously Her Majesty's private apartment to which I'm not privy yet. Must get those other autographs first.

Tumti-tumti-tum, just go through here and... ahem, sorry Andy, I mean Your Highness, didn't realise you were in the bath, I was hoping I might catch... ahem, cough, no, nothing at all. What's that, sir?? Bring you something to play with? What about your loofah? You want a boat, right, I see. Tra-la-la... three rooms away, here's a boat, this is going to be easy, tumti-tum... there you are, sir. What, no good? Rats, there's no pleasing some people. I'll go and light Fergie's fire instead, if you'll forgive the expression. What's that Ma'am. You want some freckles? At once Ma'am.

What's this on Fergie's dressing table? Looks like a radio. The graphics are good but I wish these arcade-adventures would actually tell you what it is you've found when you've found it. Ah-ha! A secret passage! Some kind of radio control device, obviously. I'll just go down in the cellars... and here's another boat! But when I go into that dungeon the portcullis drops behind me. And to raise the portcullis, I have to pull on this here hanging skeleton... pull, pull, pull, then run like a flunky and I can just get out. And if I stop to pick up the boat, I can't make it past the portcullis in time.

Back to Chas and Di. Now is this Di's wig... could be a set of curlers... or is it a spring? And why are all these balls bouncing about in the next room? Splat-splat-BOING! That's me getting hit on the head twice before discovering it is indeed a spring I'm holding, and it'll bounce these balls from one room to another.

To sum up, my little would-be flunkies, this is a game with big graphics, funnily done, and with more than a touch of the Wallies about the way you collect objects and have to work out what to do with them. Redefinable keys, joystick option, and if you get fed up with the English version, you can play in any of four other languages. Takes a wee while to get into, but then I was playing with no instructions. The only quibble could be it might prove a mite too difficult for the average gamester, but for those with perseverance all I can say is splat-splat-BANG!-BOING!-splat, Ma'am. Now 'scuse me while I tug my forelock... ahhhh!... By jove I needed that.

YOU! GET ME A BOAT TO PLAY WITH

Andy's very keen on keeping clean, and spends most of his time in the bath. Fergie meanwhile sits in her room off to the left, studying the mirror. So what can the object be with RED written on it? Fergie's box of instant freckler? Don't panic, 'cos it's the royal towel, for drying the royal bod.

Some people say that Charles is off his rocker, but as you can see from this shot, he's comfortably seated on it. Still barmy as a coot, though. Question is, can you get his polo balls? You'll need the springs to catch them, and take note of the time - it's counting you down towards the dole!

Mirrorsoft/£7.95

Mike Meet Professor Humpty Bogus, inventor of the digital teabag — sounds like the type of character who turns up in my Subs Club letters column from time to time. But no, he's the villain of this smidgeon-under-a-megagame game called Moonstrike. Not satisfied with the digital teabag, Bogus has also built a Tachyon Vortex on the far side of the moon, and he's threatening to blow up the earth with this superweapon. Your mission (and you're advised to stop the tape loading if you're not interested) is to breach the lunar defences and destroy the Vortex.

Moonstrike is best described as a slightly slowed-down version of Slap Fight. It's the same idea of moving your ship forward over the scrolling-down landscapes, zapping and dodging, with equally good graphics and smooth movement, but it's all done at a slightly slower pace. This should be an improvement for an aged wrinkle like me, but I found it a bit annoying that my ship wouldn't move quite quickly enough — a bit like flying through treacle.

In fact blobs of treacle are one of the enemy defences, along with light bulbs, and while these come down the screen at you there are various gun defences blasting ping-pong balls in all directions. Well that's what they look like!

Whatever they are, it's best to steer clear of the foot of the screen as they carry on firing even after they've scrolled off the bottom, so if you're not careful you quickly get a ping-pong ball up the bum.

In your support you have a cross-hair sight in front of your ship, and you can use this to plant mines to blow up the gun turrets as they come towards you. Your reward for getting to the end of the first level is to face a massive turret which spits bullets in eight directions and clouds of gas just to fill in the gaps — took me ages to get past the first of these, and face the pleasures of the even nastier levels beyond. A terrific space shoot-out. Buy! Bye-bye!

CENTURIONS

Reaktor/£8.99

Net Oh cripes! Doc Terror has nabbed a load of Tyron-dichromate and is about to destroy life as we know it, and probably Phil Snout, too!

There's only one thing to do... call in the Centurions. This is where you come in, so snap your weapon systems onto your Exoframe, put on your cool shades and it's Powerxtreme!

Yes, I know the Centurions don't wear shades but you'll have to if you want to survive long, 'cos with this game it's Eye-strainxtreme. Not only is the colour scheme as garish as you can possibly imagine, but the sprites are miniscule, dotty blobs which flicker as they move around and flicker even more when the screen scrolls, but then the whole screen flickers while scrolling!

Centurions is hardly hot on the originality front either; it is a sort of Gauntlet meets Nemesis. You can collect extra weapons by killing certain aliens and use different keys to open different doors. Some areas of the maze can only be accessed by certain Centurions but you can change the bloke you're playing at the start.

So, the game boils down to a lot of repetitive to-ing and fro-ing as you run back to base to change your man, then back to the maze to open a door, and then back to base...

The two player option does little to incite more excitement, or improve the addictive qualities. I notice that the programmer is called A. N. Other; it's no wonder he's decided to stay anonymous!

YS CLAPOMETER

A tedious Gauntlet clone which has been rendered completely unplayable by messy graphics and flickery scrolling.

Mind Games/£7.95

Tony W The idea of being able to enter your own head and literally collect your thoughts appeals to someone like me who spends his entire life drifting from one day-dream to another!

Our hero, Professor Storm, can't afford to day-dream — his big day is at hand. He's facing his important television debut, a lecture on geometric solids for the Open Polytechnic. The studio is hushed, the credits begin to roll and... panic!! His mind is a total blank. Only one thing for it — he has to get inside his own head and sort those stray thoughts out.

This isn't as easy as you might think. The Prof's brain is full of distractions; thoughts about ice cream, molecules, and other thingies get in the way, often reducing his IQ (life) level. While he collects the scattered formulae (in the correct order) all these distractions have to be avoided by skillful movement around the cogs and gears of his complicated brain.

Well that's the scenario. The game itself is another 'collect and dodge' multi-level arcade adventure, just substitute the platforms and ladders for wheels and cogs. The program is enjoyable and addictive. I often felt myself wanting just another go — the sign of a great bit of software.

The presentation is original, I don't think I've seen the idea of spinning 'cogs' before, and the way the screen is drawn and characters animated (all beautifully done) all lend it a fair bit of style.

All in all, I found this game to be simple to play but hard to put down, the best Mind Games offering for quite a while. If you fancy tidying your brain, get Pie R Squared and you're on your way. One niggle though, it's a mite overpriced at £7.95. £4.99 would have been nearer the mark chaps!

FOOTBALL DIRECTOR

D&H/£8.95

Marcus Although most of the games industry has been cornered by the big companies with their vast marketing spends, advertising budgets and freebie lunches for Dr Berkman (more, please!), there's one tiny sector that's still well under control of the independents — the footie management simulation. It's probably got much to do with the massive success of Kevin Toms' Football Manager, which has bobbed in and out of the charts for nigh on five years and is probably the best selling Speccy game ever. (Is it? I'd be interested to find out.)

The best of the current crop is D&H Games' Football

Director, which is about to be made widely available after some time on mail order only. Written by De Salis and Huggard it's a no-frills sim which cuts out any unnecessary graphics and attempts at arcade action and sticks to what footie sim fans really want — pure strategy. The packaging's modest — a simple inlay card with the barest of instruction — but if you're interested in a game like this, you're going to know exactly what's required, and what you don't get immediately you'll pick up along the way.

Starting at the bottom of Div 4 (where else?) you must pick your team and battle through a full league programme without throwing all your money away. You can mortgage your club when the going gets tough (which it will) and also borrow cash from the bank. There's a full timetable of League, FA Cup, League Cup and European matches. Players have skill points, which are influenced by morale, which is naturally decided by winning or not. Morale is surprisingly fragile. There are appalling hazards all along the way — injuries, sendings off, postponements, crowd violence, retirements, interest, tax, other managers trying to poach your players, even sackings. There are fixture lists, automatic updatings of the league, midweek games, the opportunity to buy or sell shares, international games, loads of transfers and even three skill levels. It makes Football Manager look like a tatty old Basic game. If you like this sort of thing (which I do), you'll love this.

If you have problems finding it in the shops, send £8.95 (cheque/PO) to D&H Games, 19 Melne Road, Stevenage, Herts SG2 8LL. Oh, and remember to save regularly — it has the occasional tendency to crash!

YS CLAPOMETER

A definite Match Of The Day for football fans. Low on action, but high on strategy. You'll be over the moon with this one!

THE COMPLICATIONS OF COMPILATIONS

Aaargh! Which one to buy? Dr Berkman takes a butchers at the latest batch...

Ah yes, it's a complicated business. The implications and ramifications of compilations can cause such vacillations and palpitations in selection situations, (as my old granny used to say). So which should you invest your pools money in? Since my last round-up in July I've been literally deluged by newies — okay, I've had six — and here they are, dissected without mercy. Heh heh heh! Although I've referred to the original reviews (the dates in brackets refer to the issues they first appeared in), I've tried to judge the games by today's standard's, so some of the marks may be a smidgin different (ie lower). Fings ain't wot they used to be (thank God!).

SUMMER GOLD

US Gold/£9.95

Summer? Hah! As the rain courses dismally down the windows of Castle Rathbone, it's hard to get too excited about anything that claims any connection with 'summer'. Still, this isn't a bad collection, even if you get the feeling that US Gold's really dredging up oldies that aren't so much goldies as mouldies. Bruce Lee (May '85) was one of the very first beat'em ups — fortunately things have come along a little since then. Dambusters (Sept '85) and Beach-Head II (Feb '86) haven't aged too gracefully either, but Impossible Mission (Dec '85) remains the classically addictive platformer it always was. More recently there's Adventuresoft's first game, Rebel Planet, which the troll supremo gave a guarded welcome to, back in Sept '86. 10th Frame (April '87) is the newest of the six, a bowling sim with the same pedigree (and control system) as Leaderboard, but without quite the same addictive qualities. A fair compilation, but nowt to write home about.

3 COIN-OP CLASSICS

US Gold/£9.99

Not really a compilation as such, just three old games banded together and available for a tenner, original packaging and all. They're all conversions of coin-ops, and all first saw the light (heavenly choir) last autumn, but as games they couldn't be more different. Breakthru (Jan '87) is a remarkably tatty drive 'n' shoot which may have been a spanker in the arcades but is more of a slap round the chops on the Speccy. Kung-Fu Master (Sept '86) has all the usual flying limbs and oriental shrieks (zzzz), while Crystal Castles is a cracking conversion of the old Atari Pac-Man derivative, well worth a tenner by itself as far as I'm concerned. Good stuff.

THE BEST OF 3D

Vortex/£9.99

Howzabout this collection of Vortex's finest moments. All four of these were written by Costa Panayi over a four-year period, and in the absence of any new stuff (get on with it, Costa!) US Gold has bunged out this Greatest Hits set. Revolution is the most recent, a 3D puzzle game which wowed Tommy Nash (in one of his more interekchall moods) last November. Highway Encounter (Oct '85) is a corky old Zaxxon-type road blaster that still seems to turn up on almost every compilation going, and Android Two plays quite brilliantly for a game that's now four years old. Cracking stuff.

The Edge/£8.99

More plundering of vaults as The Edge distinters its own collection of 'Those You Have Loved'. This one is very much in the 'One Ripsnorter And The Rest's Rubbish' mode, a bit like Virgin's Now Games 4 which we looked at last time. The nerve-tingler there was Dan Dare, and here it's Bobby Bearing, a brilliant marbly 3D arcade adventure and one of the best games we've ever seen from The Edge. But then there are the others. Brian Bloodaxe is a platform game of stultifying unoriginality, Starbike is a rip-off of Lunar Jetman, Psytraxx has 1000 rooms but not much in any of 'em, and That's The Spirit is a multi-screen city romp à la Ghostbusters, except without the jokes. If you haven't seen B Bearing, this is good value. Otherwise, steer well clear.

ACTION PACK

Alligata/£4.99

Feeble collection of Alligata's least distinguished games. Trap (April '87) is probably the best thing here, a vertical scroller that already looks dated when compared to what we've seen since. Who Dares Wins II (June '86) was never daring enough and lost, while Indoor Bowling is too much like all the other 349276 indoor bowling games we've seen of late. And Octagon is very late indeed — we only reviewed it in May! Not the most sparkling compilation I've seen, though by no means appalling value at a fiver. (Available only in WH Smith.)

6-PAK VOL 2

Hit-Pak/£9.95

Corky compilation, far superior to the first 6-Pak package. International Karate (Feb '86) is an unoriginal beat-'em-up, but otherwise the standard's consistently high. Lightforce (Dec '86) and Shockway Rider (April '87) were the first releases from Gargoyle offshoot FTL, and each in its own way is a brilliant achievement on the Speccy: Lightforce, a detailed and addictive (though not terribly swift) shooter and Shockway, a multi-speed scroller of urban walkways in a mugger-infested future. ACE (Oct '86) is the fastest (but also the most graphically primitive) of all aerial-zapping simulations, while Into The Eagle's Nest (May '87) was one of the best of the Gauntlet variants and certainly the most popular. Finally, there's a game called Batty, which you may well have heard about! All in all, a fine collection.

indicated on a dinky little icon showing a muscled arm holding a dumbbell. Lose energy and the dumbbell gets lower, until you lose one of your six lives.

One of the main problems I had with JSW was that, when falling several screens, the final screen (where you hit the ground) would repeat and repeat until I was well and truly mangled. This doesn't happen in Heist 2012. I'm happy to say. If you fall, and believe me, you will, you can continue the game happily, minus one life.

Otherwise, though, Heist is virtually the dead spit for Willy — only smoother, slicker and more playable. Original it isn't, but if games were banned for unoriginality, nothing would ever be released!

Firebird/£1.99

Tony L When I first saw this, I thought 'Oh no, another Manic Miner/Jet Set Willy clone'. In a way it is, but in a way it's not (Hey! Profound! Ed). Granted, it's a platformer, but it's a smooth, hard one (oo-er), which a lot of the time relies on pixel-perfect accuracy! It isn't bad!

The year is 2012. (Go on! Ed) Most of the world lives on credit (like the YS staff), though some still use hard cash. For these poor saps, massive banks have been set up, and the one you've decided to rob is, weirdly, full of platforms and ladders. Cool! The controls are left, right and jump (sound familiar?) and your strength is

HOW TO BE A COMPLETE BASTARD

Virgin Games/£9.95

Phil Hello, girls! I bet you can't tell who I'm meant to be. I'm wearing a wellington boot on my head, I've just drunk 14 pints of 1080° lager, and I've just piddled in your hat. Give up? Hah! Knew you would! Hooargh! Oh dear, I seem to have lost me coleslaw into the front of your trousers. Pardon me. Uuuurrrppp! Yes, it's Ade The Bastard, and he's back in his own game, based on the megabright book, How To Be A Complete Bastard. Incidentally, the book has sold millions, which means now Ade's a slightly less than alternative comedian, being almost as rich as Tarby, Max-a-long-a-Byegraves, and Brucie all rolled into one.

In the game, you play the part of Ade, wandering around a yuppie house party, making yourself as unpopular as humanly possible in the shortest time. Brilliant! Make a mess, throw up, smash things, put sneezing powder up girls' noses, you know the sort of thing, eh readers? But don't open the umbrella you'll find in the umbrella stand, 'cos as everybody knows that's VERY BAD LUCK! And it'd be just your bad luck to be turned into a gas cooker if you do it! Hah hah!

The graphics are pretty good, with an original 4-way view of the room, where you see two views at a time, and can select which of the four views occupy which of the two windows. (Huh? Ed) Which is handy if you can't see which way you're going, as you can turn one of the views to search for a door. One funny thing is if you gulp down a large alcoholic drinkie, the bottom of the two windows spins round very fast as if you were sozzled.

Hmm. It's such a laugh to be really disgusting, innit? And really so utterly predictable after all these years, eh? But I'm sure that if you like the 'Ade The Utter Bastard' sense of 'humour' you'll really enjoy this wacky and very alternative game. Honestly. No, really you will... Look, buy it, you scum, or I'll eat your HAMSTER! (Chompl!)

Two whole years after Commie owners bent our ears off about it, Novagen's classic Mercenary finally makes it to the Spectrum. And what a ripper! Marcus Berkman foams at the mouth, as per usual!

It's funny, isn't it, the way that the more things there are to go wrong, the more things do go wrong. And in a spacecraft, there are billions of 'em. So when the Novadrive on your Prestinium space ship cuts out on a routine trip to Gamma 5, you know you're in trouble. And as the planet Targ approaches rather faster than you'd wish, it's inevitable that the controls all fail together and you spiral helplessly into the centre of the main city... ker-SPLAT!

Fortunately you survive. In Mercenary you always survive, no matter how stupid, careless or downright suicidal you are. It's that sort of game. But there's more, much more. In fact, I've never seen a game in which there was so much. It's a staggering achievement.

You've no doubt heard of it. Owners of the despised Commie 64 have already had the best part of two years to hone their skills on the original Mercenary, and I'm sure they've told you about it. And told you about it. And then mentioned it again, just in case you hadn't heard the first 6549 times. If, like me, you weren't listening, I'd better tell you what it's all about.

Mercenary uses a 3D vector graphics system to display an entire planet, or at least a sensor-scan representation of it. You see, it's not the planet that you see, but what your portable computer, installed in your helmet and known as 'Benson', lets you see.

You start the game with just 9000 credits, Benson and your enormous brain — and your aim is to get off Targ as quickly and lucratively as possible. Well, you are a mercenary! The city's large (about the size of Walsall, by my reckoning) so you'll need to find some transport if you don't fancy slogging about on foot for several months. Fortunately you've crashed at an airport, so there could be an aircraft for sale. But isn't 5000 credits rather expensive? And will it get you up to the space station that revolves high above the city? And what about this missile flying towards you? Wouldn't it be a good idea to shoot it down?

You discover that there are two warring races on the planet, each controlling parts of the city. The Palyars were Targ's original inhabitants, while the warring Mechanoids are a particularly nasty bunch of invading robots. Long wars have reduced most of the planet's surface to wasteland. Even the city is relatively barren, and most life is now concentrated in a huge subterranean network of rooms and corridors, accessible from large elevators. As you explore you find objects to take and use. Although you meet people you don't actually see them — Benson just interprets their demands or messages and relays them on-screen. As a rule, people don't fire on you. Most doors are simple rectangles, but other, differently shaped ones need keys before you can get through them, and those with crosses on, hide teleports that whip you off to another part of the labyrinth. Even these are not always what they seem — some only send, others only receive, yet others send and receive, and some transport you to a random destination. Naturally there's a certain amount of mapping to be done: Well, a vast amount, actually.

Of course, you can cheat. Novagen is selling a Targ Survival Kit, which features all sorts of useful maps and some amazingly cryptic clues. But even if this gives you the edge, it by no means ruins the game. What might ruin it is if I tell you too much. It's more fun to start from a condition of total ignorance, and then find things out.

I'll just leave you with a couple of clues for now (study the captions). There are apparently three ways to complete the game, though at present I know of only one (all to do with acquiring enough credits to hire a Novadrive ship from the local spacecraft hire shop). I'll be interested to hear of any more — indeed, I expect that both Tipshop and Clinic will be bursting with hints and game-snags in the coming months. Yes, Mercenary is that good.

APPROACHING JORDAN AIRPORT

Named after Novagen's boss Bruce Jordan, curiously enough (other places in the game are named after far less reputable people — Takoushi Drive????). When you land, do it gently. There's no rush, and you'll regret it if you smash the craft into a heap of useless rubble. It's from this airport that all flight traffic leaves for the Second City (of which more later...).

Part trading game, part strategy, part arcade-adventure, Mercenary also works on the level of flight simulator. Controls are easily mastered, and you can even hover motionless for as long as you want, idly surveying the cityscape. Hee-ee!

Irritating, isn't it, the way that certain craft will only go up so far and then no further. Unless of course you find a gadget that'll power them up a bit!

There are always perspective problems, even with such clear two-tone graphics, so use the elevation window regularly. Particularly useful when flying up to the space station — otherwise you could be upside down without knowing it!

A useful window this — the city is divided into a 15 by 15 grid, so this helps you get around and see where you are. Try 09-06 if you need a lift and 15-02 for liquid refreshment. Or see the Walton Monument at 06-00 — a fine slab of modern architecture (yuk!).

Learn to use the compass — it's invaluable when making maps and especially when identifying where you are after a teleport. Red and yellow indicate direction, in this case virtually due north.

This is where Benson pipes up with all his various comments and snippets of info. Pay attention, as he won't give you much time to respond, and if you don't, he won't ask again!

This is the Mechanoid leader, and a nasty bit of work he is too. If you agree to sell any bits and bobs you've been flogging them on, be well rewarded, but if he finds out you've been flogging them on the side to the Palyars, you'll be Whiskas Supermeat. This is also not a good place to start shooting.

Need any medical supplies? Well you might or might not. Who's to tell? Just remember that you can't carry more than ten things at any one time, and as some of them may be important keys (there are at least half a dozen different ones required) you've got to be careful. That door in the distance is a two-way teleport. How do I know? Mum's the word!

Ah, a tempting little structure for some swift target practice. But if you blow it up, Benson tells you that "You have just destroyed the author's advert. From now on things will be even tougher." Don't say we didn't warn you!

This radar screen on the edge of the grid is pretty but probably irrelevant. Or is it? One of the problems is to sort out what's useful and what's not. For all you know, this may be tracking you down and could be why those irritating missiles keep attacking you. Should you blow it to bits, and attract possible reprisals?

COMICS

A couple of surprises in this month's chart, with the trio of Spiderman titles hanging on tightly to the top end, Punisher seems to have been welded into place, Lone Wolf & Cub (this 'zine walks on water!) has shot upwards, X-Men Annual remains a predictable seller, but the Swamp Thing is enjoying a new spurt (urgh!) of popularity.

DESERT ISLAND DISKS — THE CHART

Yes, well, we're getting so many of your Disks through the post that we thought, why not knock up a chart to see what are the most popular games? It's a close run thing with one exception. So far an amazing 205 games have been chosen by hopeful castaways, and there have been a few surprises (Where's Monty? Jet Set Willy? Lightforce? Knightlore?). And the exception? Gauntlet, of course, a staggering 58% higher than the second place games. Cooee!

1. Gauntlet (US Gold)
2. Cobra (Ocean)
3. Paperboy (Elite)
4. Uridium (Hewson)
5. The Great Escape (Ocean)
6. Match Day (Ocean)
7. Bombjack (Elite)
8. Commando (Elite)
9. Elite (Firebird)
10. Enduro Racer (Activision)

Keep on sending in your disk selections. One lucky disk jockey will have his/her choice splashed about in glorious monochrome on the letters page, and a handful of others will be chosen at random and receive a YS badge. This month's winners are Collin G from Winstanley, Wigan; Daniel Howells from Battle in Sussex; Christopher Mitchell of Stubbington, Hants; Leighton Davis from Hoddesdon, Herts; Amanda Ramage from St Annes on Sea, Lancs; and Ian Harris, Westcliff-on-Sea, Essex. More next month!

The Untouchables (18) Kevin Costner, Robert De Niro, Sean Connery

Gee, man, it's a G-Man, and by that I mean guns, gangsters and guts. Eliot Ness is reborn in the shape of fresh-faced Kevin Costner and though he calls himself Untouchable, I'd love to grab him!

The time is 1931, or 7.31 pm, which means the pubs should have opened long ago, but not in Prohibition America. The only booze is strictly illegal so when you're feeling thirsty, who ya gonna call but Big Al... though you can call him Mr Capone! In fact you'd better call him Mr Capone because he can switch from smiles and jokes one minute to the sort of guy who plays baseball with a dinner guest's head the next. If you thought De Niro was mean in the past, just wait till you see him as the world's worst mobster!

Eliot Ness has the job of sorting out the mess and the first problem for the innocent young Federal Agent is to find a cop he can trust. Not that the force is corrupt... they just accept their bribes in nine dollar notes!

Luckily he meets up with stalwart old-timer Malone, played by that famous Irishman Sean Connery and soon Ness and the beat cop are beating up the baddies. But still Capone escapes them... unless, as two-listed accountant Wallace suggests, they can do him for tax fraud.

Yes, it's a man's life in the Inland Revenue as guns blaze and Chicago erupts into wholesale warfare. The Untouchables has enough shooting and suspense to satisfy the most hardened arcade addict. Don't miss!

YS SHOPPING LIST

Have you ever seen anything quite so revolting, except maybe watching Phil eat his lunch? Scarcely a cuddly toy, but give him a squeeze and... well, it's too disgusting to say. A hint: it sounds too much like a case of the post-curry blues for any more to be said. You'll just have to buy your own. Ask for a Grumple from Matchbox. Never has £9.99 guaranteed so many giggles.

So now you know! If you've got any suggestions on bits and bobs that you'd like us to feature, or you've got a chart of your own to show the world, then drop us a line to Street Life, Your Sinclair, 14 Rathbone Place, London W1P 1DE. Any that we publish will win a game and a YS badge.

Pee-Wee's Big Adventure (U)

Pee-Wee Herman

A little test:

- 1) Do clown shows make you laugh?
- 2) Do you own a red bike, plastic dinosaur or hand-painted spotty dog?
- 3) Have you ever talked to your breakfast?
- 4) Did it talk back to you?

Answer yes to the above and you're a prime candidate for Pee-Wee mania.

Pee-Wee Herman is sort of indescribable. He's in his early thirties going on 12, heavily made up, and wears a suit a couple of sizes too small — the sort of freak even a train-spotter would think twice about talking to!

But there's something about Pee-Wee that's made America take him to its collective heart. Now we too can be captivated by the oddest movie since Jesse James Meets Frankenstein's Daughter.

Pee-Wee is a rebel you see — a biker, though in his case the cycle is red with chrome trim and strictly pedal-powered. And he's quite happy living his kiddie existence until, shock-horror, tragedy strikes and he's a rebel without a bike, let alone a cause.

An inept medium tells our hero that she sees the bike at Texas's famous Alamo — 'in the basement.' So Pee-Wee sets out on his episodic, epic quest, meeting a gang of Hells Angels, a ghostly trucker and even Godzilla on the way. It all ends happily, like all the best fairy stories, with Pee-Wee becoming a film star.

Which is what's happened in real life. Mr Herman has become the unluckiest sex-symbol ever. Whether you find his antics hilarious or horrible will depend on what makes you laugh. This could be for the soft of heart... or just the soft of head!

There may not be many reasons to venture further than the Watford Gap, but Alton Towers is certainly one of them. So much so, that we decided to get up at the crack of dawn, board a train, eat a British Rail breakfast and travel hundreds of miles to Stoke just so's we could tell you how wonderful the world of Alton Towers really is. And it had absolutely nothing to do with the fact that we fancied a fun day out ourselves, of course.

After prising Phil out of the buffet car, we squeezed into a taxi and headed for the beautiful Staffordshire town of Alton, where the park is situated. Our first sighting of it was the majestic towers of Alton Mansion which stood on a hill above 800 acres of grounds filled with 'fun, fantasy and excitement': 300 of which are devoted to the entertainment complex and another 300 to the finest landscaped gardens in Europe, containing Pagoda fountains, a Chinese temple and the Grand

Over 2.2 million people visit Alton Towers each year, with up to 35,000 on some Bank Holidays, but luckily there were only about 11,000 people the day we went, though the place is so vast you really don't notice them. After having a quick bite to eat, on Phil's request, we began our tour of Europe's number one leisure park, which boasts some 100 attractions.

RIDE 'EM COWBOY!

There are five main theme areas, Fantasy World, Festival

GRAND CANYON RAPIDS

▶ Hmmm! All that water looks a bit ominous. 12 acres of it to be precise. Still, that didn't put us off, well except for Darrell. Ah, gliding through the rippling water is pleasant enough, dunno what all the fuss is about. Okay there's a few rapids ahead, but we should get through those without a dousing... whoosh. Move over Marcus I'm getting soaked. T'zer. Ha ha Pete's drenched... splash oh no I've just had half a gallon of water plonked on me lap. Phil. Blimey I'm getting seasick from all this turbulence. Get on top of me T'zer. Pete I beg your pardon! T'zer. You obviously haven't seen those two Niagara falls up ahead. Pete. Whoooooosh... swirl... spray! Well, I'm well and truly moist now. Phil. Ha ha I'm not, though. Marcus. Splash... Urgh! We warned you about those water jets at the end to catch smarts asses like you out. Hee hee! Anyway if you don't get wet you feel cheated after a thrilling half mile ride like this.

CORKSCREW

▶ Yikes! Have we got to go on that? So we've managed to get well strapped in to the car. Now what? Oh, we chug up a 75 foot incline. No problem! And then we swoop down a sheer drop of sixty feet, you must be... aaaaaaa-rrrrrrrrgghhh... haaaaaayy-yippppp... let me off... wheeeeeeee... crrrrrrriiipes... oooooooooohhhhhh... mmmmmmmmmeeeee... ooo-eeee-err... whaaayyyyyy... nooooooooo not the corkscreeeeeeeewwww... argghhhhhhhhhhh... whoooooaaa-aaaa... flippin' heeeechk... crunch... thud... joking! Never again. Travelling at 40 miles an hour upside down round the 'corkscrew'? You won't get me on that again in a hurry. I've just got to have another go. T'zer Wheeeeeeee...

1001 NIGHTS

▶ Wossis then? Looks like an Arabian carriage with a big pendulum sticking out of it. Right who's for a go on this then? Well, Phil and Darrell have chickened out so it just leaves Peter, T'zer and me. Cor why are we being strapped in so well. Blimmin' heck you don't think we're gonna end up there — 85 foot above the ground? Uh-oh! We are! Hey, it swings back and forth like a see-saw getting higher and higher but at least we stay horizontal. Wah-ay! I've just left my stomach on top of that tree and T'zer's gone a funny shade of green. Maybe that's why Pete's screaming so much! Yikes! It's gone all the way over the top and dropped right down to the ground again, leaving my guts somewhere in between. Marcus. Urgh! Bleeeergh! T'zer.

BLACK HOLE

▶ Now, this is the ride everyone's been shouting about. Where's Phil? Ooomph! Oh there you are. I can't see a damn thing — it's pitch black in here. Marcus. Are we all safely strapped in? Cor, those blokes aren't half double checking the safety belts — are you sure this is a good idea? Phil. Right we're off. A nice gentle climb to the top... flippin' 'eck we're getting a bit high — surely we're going to have to come down sooooooonerrrr — arrgghhhhhhhh — screeeeeammm. Blimey we just dropped 50 feet! This is really frightening you can't see a thing so you don't know what's going to happen next... waaaa-ahaaayyyy, whooooooooaaaaa... T'zer. I want my mum. Pete. Crumbs, now I know why everybody coming out of here looks as white as a sheet! Darrell. Wheeeeeeee! Crunch! Ah, we've stopped — I want another go — this has got to be the most thrilling experience ever! Phil

Park, Aqualand, Talbot Street and Kiddies Kingdom, and each one is packed with fun things to do and see. We didn't manage to view everything on our whirlwind tour, but some of the bigger attractions worth looking out for include the miniature railway that runs through the amazing gardens, the shopping mall in Towers Street crammed with shops selling all sorts of goodies, the newly introduced futuristic Monorail that takes you from the car park to the Grand Entrance and the brand-new Skyride cable cars that run

PORKY PHIL'S GUIDE TO FAST FOOD FILLERS

All those fast and furious rides and the walking in between them certainly works up an appetite. It's a bit of luck then that you can buy food absolutely everywhere. This really is a paradise for food fetishists like myself. After porking my way through a one foot diameter pizza in the Pizzeria in Aqualand, I grabbed a Feast from the Tuck Shop and felt strong enough to do a quick tour round the snack bars and restaurants. Apart from all the stalls, selling giant ice-creams, chips, candy floss, buckets of Coca Cola and toffee apples there are six huge restaurants to fill up at. The Talbot is the biggest fast food restaurant in Europe, serving 1,000 people an hour, which is a bit of luck 'cos I'll be visiting it a few times myself! If you're a posh geezer you can always pop in to the luxury Swiss Cottage silver service restaurant for a slap up meal — in fact I think it's just about time for a snack!

right across the park, giving some breathtaking aerial views of the complex and gardens.

Each theme area houses a variety of stomach churning, white knuckle rides, some of which are the best in Europe — the most hair raising being the Corkscrew Rollercoaster,

Pirate Ship, 1001 Nights, Enterprise, Grand Canyon Rapids, Log Flume and Black Hole. And if you're faint hearted you can always take in the more leisurely attractions like the Dolls, Model Railway and Vintage Car exhibitions and the sedate journey across

ENTERPRISE

When is a roundabout a big wheel? When it's an Enterprise. Beam us up Scotty 'cos this looks like a lorra, lorra fun. Are you sure you don't want a go, Phil? You don't spend that long 62 feet in the air upside down.

Marcus. What do you think I am — completely hat-stand or summink? Phil. Well, it's not too bad whilst it's chugging round and round. Wheeee... we're going quite fast now. Screeeammm! T'zer. Wot's happenin? We're going up in the air and Phil looks like he's doing a headstand — that's funny, everyone down there's upside down. Pete. You dummy, it's us that's upside down. Marcus. Help, I feel sick. We're going so fast I can hardly speak and how come we don't fall out? T'zer. Bellow... Centrifugal force. Phil. Shut-up you. Arrggghhh... I want to get off. T'zer. Blimey, that guy down there just got my pizza — and for free even though it was second-hand. Pete. Phew we're stopping. Why is T'zer swaying like that. She looks like she's completely sozzled? Now that's what I call a thrilling experience. Marcus

LOG FLUME

Ah, the Log Flume. We'd heard that this is the longest water ride in the world at 2,600 feet long. It takes 5 minutes to complete, so we had to have a go on it. We all got in the log-shaped boat and for some reason Marcus insisted he go in the back and Peter at the front. Ah, it's nice watching all that beautiful countryside go by as we float gently round the course... Who turned the lights out? And why are we going up this track?

T'zer. Cripes, we're plunging down at the speed of light, except it's dark and... splosh... I'm drenched. Now I see why Marcus told me to sit here. Pete. Jolly jape, eh?

Marcus. Oh crumbs, look at the height of that water chute ahead. Oooooooooo-er... haylp... whooooooooooooooh! And I thought this was going to be a sedate ride. T'zer. Hey, Pete why didn't you have a bath before you came? Tee hee! Marcus

SKYRIDE

Now this is one hell of a ride and so it should be since it cost £6 million to build. There are three stations where you can board these sphere-like Gondolas (cable cars) and up to twelve people can fit in them. We all climbed in at Towers Street and we were soon up, up and away! Gasp! The only sound to be heard was the in-car music and Darrell blowing his nose. Quite frankly I don't know which was worse! T'zer. What a view, there's Aqualand... and gasp, just look at those gardens. I know we're 200 feet up Phil, but you could take your head out from between your legs. Darrell. Heh, we're approaching the second station at the Chinese Temple — wow, this is brilliant. I can almost touch the Pagoda Fountain. Pete. Gosh, there's the Corkscrew and the Enterprise — we'll be on those in a minute. Can't wait. T'zer. This sure is the best way to see the Park — it really is a spectacular ride! Marcus

PIRATE SHIP

Yo ho ho and a bottle of rum! Talking of bottle we lost ours when it came to getting on the Pirate Ship — all except macho Marcus who insisted he have a go, even after eating all that candy floss. Over to him for the commentary.

I'm working with a load of wimps. This ride looks well corky. At least I seem to be strapped in pretty tightly — ooomph! Ah, it's started to swing — maybe I shouldn't have eaten all those sweets — whoooooaaaaaa. Gasp! Blimey, it's like being on a giant swing — arrrrrrggghhh! For a moment there we were completely weightless — Phil really should've tried it out! Wheeeeeeee — this is brilliant, if only my stomach thought the same — it abandoned my body somewhere high in the sky and is refusing to come back. I recommend only those with a cast iron stomach try this ride out — I still can't understand why that gut bucket Phil didn't have a go! Marcus

LICENSED TO THRILL

But you wouldn't catch us butch YS guys chickening out of a ride on a rollercoaster even if it does turn you upside down and your stomach inside out. So the first place we headed for was the Corkscrew and then the Enterprise, followed by 1001. We swayed on towards the Pirate Ship, Grand Canyon Rapids and Log Flume, and finally managed to stagger to the ultimate in thrill experiences — the Black Hole! Huurrrrrghie Rrrrrulph! Bleeceurgh! But more of that later.

Alton Towers really is a wonderful world filled with fun, fantasy and excitement — if you get the chance, go and see it. You'll love it — we did! It's real family entertainment so you could even persuade your mum and dad to take you. They can stroll round the beautiful gardens while you thrash round the bone shakin' rides, coming off looking like Andrew Lloyd Webber and feeling like Bob Geldof looks!

And if you live down in Land's End and can't get to Alton Towers just yet, don't worry there are plenty of other leisure parks, though not quite as enormous, scattered around the country. We've compiled a list showing where they are and some of the bigger rides found at each one. Right we're off — there's a bit of final research we need to do at Alton Towers. Arrrrrrrrrrggghh!

ear Sir Gerrard,” the first letter begins. Unfortunately it’s not from the Palace, just from Nick Turner of Normanton, who says that Gremlins is driving him to the bottle. Hmm, I must load it up again myself in that case. The specific problem is what to do with the smashed vents. Obvious, you twit, you fix them. Oh, you want to know how. I see, well take the HCROT DNA EPIP and SETALP DLEW, but not the one in the hardware department.

Jeff Bird of Cardiff is having vocabulary trouble — mainly his lack of it. In The ‘O’ Zone he says he’s wearing the bucket to get past the robot leader, but now he needs it to put some acid in and he can’t drop it as the program tells him he hasn’t got it. A lack of vocabulary in the program too, I think. Though if you’re wearing something in an adventure you normally have to remove it before you can drop it.

Nothing as mundane as bucket trouble for David Brankin, from Thornbury. David’s being given the runaround by a couple of dragons. The first is in Castle Blackstar: “How do I move the dragon after slaying it?” The answer is that you don’t, you have to kill it from another direction otherwise it just blocks the way and can’t be moved. In the same game, to kill the hydra you must DAERBREGNIG WORHT, which the heads will fight over, and you kill off the remaining head with any weapon.

The other dragon problem is in The Pawn, and to get past this one you first SWODAHS TA ETIHW ENIHS and then you SWODAHS TA TNIOF. As to whether you should use the blue key on the safe and vote, or on the door and save the princess, I’d say you should vote every time. The princess isn’t worth it.

A letter next from ‘Dejected of Dorset’, alias J Meaning of Throop, who asks for solutions on Imagination and The Hobbit, but without sending the required sae. Not that I have freebies available for those two games anyway, but if ‘Dejected’ would like to write in with a sae for a list of the available freebies, I’d be happy to supply one. That goes for anyone else out there, too, whether dejected, defective or just plain demented.

Michael Palmer of Newquay asks how to deal with the dinosaur (KCITS WORHT) and get past the fence (ETUHCARAP ESU) in Eureka, and how to deal with the guards in Valkyrie 17 (MEHT TOOHS).

Some tips from Anthony Prash, 20 Wales Road, Sheffield, who would also like to hear from anyone who’s playing any of the same games. In Necris Dome, make sure you have the oxy exchanger before initiating destruction; in Star Wreck plug the spark in to get the safe combination; in Lifetern send an SOS to get things going; and in Wiz Biz use the vacuum to dispose of the spectre and remember that fire demons like junk food.

Simon Purdow (I think that’s his surname) of Botley near Southampton asks a few things about The Never Ending Story because he says his copy is just gathering dust on the shelf till he can solve these problems. Right, blow off the dust and load it up again, Simon. To find the crystal you need to get past the thorns into the tunnel in the mountains, and for that you ERIFPMAC TA HCNARB THGIL, and then you SNROHT THGIL. Don’t worry about the cape, and spend as little time as possible in the swamplands.

Ron White of Mexborough says he’s known as Rodders, which I thought was the name for a plonker. He must be a plonker, as he’s sent me a solution to Bored Of The Rings, which I’ve been offering as a freebie for yonks. Or maybe he isn’t, as I didn’t include the passwords on mine, so for the benefit of everyone who’s asked about those in the past, here they are: GOODTIME, Trevor and Derek, NOT TELLING. Be sure to get your upper and lower case letters right.

A couple of useful hints to speed up play on Very Big Cave Adventure from Trevor Taylor of York. At the beginning you don’t need to go through all the routines of wearing the wellies and dealing with the bull, as the ‘magic’ words “SAY COMMODORE” will transport you to the caves right from the start, and not merely after you’ve discovered it. In the beginning was the word, and the word was Commodore. What??? Never mind, Commodore owners have to “SAY SPECTRUM”, and Amstrad owners have to “SAY SUGAR”. Trevor’s other clue is for those of you who know rude words, which I’m sure is very few of our well-behaved YS readers. At Gotham City you don’t need to capture the Jester to get a lift back to the caves, all you do is swear, and then when you get out of the swear box you’re back in the main game.

M A Squiggle of Warwick Close in Whitchurch (that’s what the signature looks like, anyway) asks about the DO command in The Hobbit, which I mentioned back in the June issue. What is this mysterious command? Well in an early version of the program they hoped to include a command that the player could use: DO MAGIC. That would provide you with a magical way of dealing with some of the problems. Then it was decided to take this out and let you deal with the problems in a non-magical way, like smashing things up with your sword. But it obviously wasn’t taken out successfully as using the word DO in your input can cause strange things to happen. It’s worth trying if you’re getting tired of playing and are about to switch off anyway, as it can cause the program to crash. “And why does Thorin keep singing about gold?” this same inquisitive reader wants to know. Well, some people are just like that. Mike sits down and starts singing, “Baby it’s gold outside.”

Nic Malone, of wonderful Wigan, is busy singing the praises of Delta 4 and The Colour Of Magic, except for the fact that he can’t get out of the burning city in part two. Despite reading the solution we printed, Nic can’t get Twoflower to co-operate by riding one of the horses. I know the solution works because I’ve played it through, and all I can think of is that maybe you’re not bothering to do something in part one that looks fairly unimportant, and that’s having repercussions later (this month’s big word). Anyone else come across a bolshie Twoflower and worked out the reason why? Nic finishes by asking if they're going to be adapting the sequel, The Light Fantastic. It's no use asking me, Nic, I know nothing, but if Piranha are listening, what are the chances?

J R Evory and Andrew Dobson of East Yorkshire want to know what to do with the Silver Socle in Kayleth, and how to stop the walls crushing you in the citadel. The answer to both being ELCOS RETNE.

Next, enter John Clifton of London SE3 with a couple of queries about Colditz. How to find the combination to the armoury and how to climb all the way up the chimney? If you can do the second, then you can discover the first. To get further up the chimney you mustn't mind who you tread on (RENOSIRP ESU), and although you can't go all the way up, when you get a bit higher you can YLLUFERAC NETSIL.

A few tips from Gregory Quinn of Portadown, in Demon From The Darksides: to get Stodge the Dwarf you must drop all and take him, but don't forget to retake the smoke and teleport spells. And in The Golden Mask, don't take the mask till you've read the scroll of Voltac.

Just to show that Your Sinclair and the adventure pages aren't only read by trainspotters, loonies and general layabouts; the latest mailbag contained letters from a teacher, a freelance photographer, a doctor from Virginia Water and a retired Major from Taunton. Yet not even the Major won a YS badge, what a shame. But last and by all means least, my old pal Ricardo Mapp is back on the map, giving me his list of the ten worst points in adventure games. They are instant deaths; excessive use of random elements; the word-game syndrome (eg DON GLOVE in Time Machine when WEAR GLOVE doesn't work); illogical mazes where each room has about ten exits, and nine of them all lead back to the same place; illogical solutions to problems (eg Moron in the room where 'The exit is not obvious' and you have to type OBSCURE); being able to finish with less than 100%; brilliant artwork that misleads you into thinking an adventure is better than it is; lack of time to solve a problem (eg two inputs before the dragon kills you); very slow responses (eg Smuggler's Cove, though there are very few as slow as that around these days); and objects which are not mentioned in the text, but you're meant to be able to identify from a badly drawn picture (eg the safe in Valkyrie 17 and the blob in the rock that's a keyhole in Terrors of Trantoss).

Some provocative thoughts there, most of which, I agree with — anyone else got any pet hates that Ricardo's missed out?

NEWS

Venture forth with Mike Gerrard

● Since my adventure round-up was finished, I've heard from Zodiac Software, who at my suggestion are reducing the price of their games, Soap Land and Scary Mansion, to just £2.50 each. As one of my few complaints about Zodiac's adventures was the high price, this reduction means that you now have absolutely no excuse for not bunging off a fiver for them both.

● When Automata went out of business it looked like the end of the road for the infamous Piman, star of the first 'adventure' I ever bought, but he's now been given a job as a logo thanks to Interceptor Micros. Interceptor has bought Automata, and will be using the label as a mid-price adventure range. The first Spectrum adventures should have been released by the time you read this. Costing £3.99, the titles to watch out for are Asiento and Sword Of Kings. I notice that one of the Automata range is likely to be the old Interceptor favourite, Warlord, though that's only on the Commodore 64 to start with. It would be good to see cheapo versions of some of the other Interceptor faves, like Message From Andromeda, Heroes Of Karn and Forest At World's End.

● Other cheapo news is from Mastertronic, which has set up yet another label. This one's called Ricochet and will be used to re-release some of the older Melbourne House titles like Morden's Quest and Hampstead in the £1.99/£2.99 price range.

● Certain readers, no names mentioned, have been trying to extract from me vital secret information about The Subs Club. What's in it for adventurers, they ask. Join and find out, I tell them. But I've decided to be kind and let you know about the latest adventurous offerings, which include two Piranha adventures for the price of one (The Big Sleaze and the Colour Of Magic), and other Speccie books at cheap prices from Duckworth. Also a special offer price on the Six-in-One adventure pack from Tartan Software. Can't be bad.

● More news on the future of Adventure Contact magazine, by way of a letter from new editor Colin Page who outlines his plans for the publication. Basically it's business as usual, and subscribers should have received their first issue under the new regime by the time they read this. "It's still a monthly publication," says Colin, "and still costs £1 per issue. Obviously it won't be the same in content because no two editors think alike. I have ideas for several new columns, and readers say they want more 'general' reading and less articles specialising in one particular computer, because if you don't own GAC or whatever, then that part of the mag is irrelevant. We will, of course, still be doing these articles, but less of them and more of the general stuff."

● You may have been wondering why Murder Off Miami didn't get a YS review, when I'm such a big fan of the lad Fergus and his merry quips. The answer lies in the fact that early Spectrum versions (such as the one sent for review) had a fatal bug which stopped you rising from your seat at the start of the game. Instead of putting you on your feet, it put you into a loop back to the start of the program. Now it seems that the bug has been sorted out, but if you've been lucky enough to pick up a bugged version, return it to CRL or the shop where you bought it for replacement. To check for the bug, type STAND UP and see if you have to start all over again. If you do, you're the proud possessor of a bug.

DEADLY MISSION

Your Deadly Mission in this game is to find the location of the rebel Trilla Pirate Base and bring back its coordinates for the good guys. Intelligence reports show that the base lies within the Korgan Empire boundaries, or "boundries" as the program spells them.

Starting the game at your ship's controls, you'd better get a move on and search the ship, as I give you advance warning: it won't be many moves before you're under attack. You've a key right under your nose, and careful examination of everything should let you equip yourself with a torch and batteries, plus a little weaponry before you're attacked and have to seek the shelter of the nearest planet.

Whether this is a wise move or not I don't know, as wandering through the landscape I found a cave, and in the cave a slumbering monster guarding its nest. All I can tell you about the monster is that it had fangs as it attacked me and that was the only bit of the message I could see, because it scrolled instantly up behind the picture that shows you the game's over. Was there a clue in that message as to how I was disturbing the creature? I'll never know as it whizzed past too fast. I sometimes wonder if programmers actually play their games once they're written.

I obviously had to kill the mysterious fanged beast, but I have to admit to defeat, even at this early stage of the game. KILL ANIMAL, SHOOT ANIMAL, FIRE RIFLE, SHOOT RIFLE — all produced no response whatsoever, except the WHAT NOW CAPTAIN? prompt repeated, leaving me wondering whether anything was happening or not. Exploring elsewhere in the landscape, I eventually heard the sound of choppers, and before I knew it, I was thrown in the ever-familiar cell. The means of escape obviously required a screwdriver, which my spies told me was in the dreaded cave, so at this point I gave up.

I should have persevered with the game, I know, but I'd seen nothing that made the adventure stand out from the crowd. I must have seen at least 200 adventures exactly like this one. Not bad, not stunning, just another everyday story of adventuring folk. I want some excitement, I want some danger, I want to be... a lumberjack! (Puts on appropriate clothing and breaks out of YS office, never to be seen again. Till next month.)

THE LOST RUBY

How I don't know if this is true or not, but the story behind The Lost Ruby is that in 1891 Queen Victoria hid a ruby somewhere on the Isle of Wight, and though hundreds of people searched the island, the jewel was never discovered. When the Queen died, ten years later, the secret of the ruby's location died with her. If it is true... where's my bucket and spade and who's for a weekend in Cowes?

True or not, it's an interesting setting for an adventure, so it's a shame that this is the first disappointing release from Wrightchoice. It's no disaster, but it's certainly no jewel. Most of the locations are real place names from the Isle of Wight, like Cowes, Ryde, Ventnor and so on, with all the little villages in between. You start at Sandown carrying some small change, 80p if you count it, but could I find an ice-cream man, just when I fancied one? An ice-cream that is. Could I heck as like!

You wander round the sights on the island, and try to find something to do. Finding a pass to get into places like the Castle and the Country Park helps. Using it, is a pain though. The fact that you're carrying the pass isn't enough, you must SHOW PASS as well. Then it's OK to ENTER ROBIN (The Robin Hill Country Park, the program won't accept ENTER PARK). Inside here and faced with east and west exits, I went

WEST and was back outside the park again. Right, ENTER ROBIN, "You need a pass." Aargghh!

Not a downright disaster, as the problems can be solved, and the inclusion of helpful features like VERBS and NOUNS commands to show you most of the vocabulary available is welcome. There's WORDS/PICTURES and a SAVE to RAM option as well, but it would need a real ruby at the end of the quest to make me persevere with this one, when there are dozens and dozens of better adventures around.

LOST SOULS

First off let's have Stephen Hennessy, who starts his ever-so-polite and well-written letter with: "First off, I gotta ask how the hell do you retrieve lost items from Skirmal in Firebird's RuneStone? I'd pull my hair out if I had any left." As it's the International Year of the Baldie, which not many people know, send whatever help you can to Stephen Hennessy at 16 Wren House, Gernon Road, Bow, London E3.

From Wren House to Wren Bull, of Ty Loch, Llanddarog Road, Carmarthen, Dyfed. Wren needs help on a less well-known game, Castle Of The Skull Lord by Samurai Software. He says he's killed the vampire in the castle, blown up the wall to get at the storeroom, swum the lake wearing the water-wings and bandaged the injured man. Now he needs to know how to capture the parrot. He assumes you need the cage, which he's got, but he can't get the parrot into it. What use is the grappling hook? What to do with the spike and the blacksmith's tongs? How to open the door in the hillside and the trapdoor in the well? Any help welcomed by Wren at the above address, and he'd like to thank Pauline Garnett of Andover who provided him with the last few moves to help him complete Necris Dome.

Time Machine trouble for Chun How Tank, 10 Shannon Road, King's Norton, Birmingham B38 9BZ. Simple question: how do you get out of the strange machine?

Several Level 9 questions from Robert Thomson, Willerby Villa, 80 West Road, Congleton, Cheshire CW12 4EV. How do you remove the spider from the web in Colossal? How do you get off the island safely in Return To Eden? How do you get past the red hot coals in Adventure Quest? And where is the rod in Interceptor's Jewels Of Babylon?

Letters from two totally crazy people next, one being artiste extraordinaire and part-time Pritt Stick, Krazy Kez Grav, also known as Kygra The Great, who, it seems, resides at the Mount Hotel, Brymbo, Wrexham, North Wales. Brymbo sounds like the hero of a Japanese version of The Hobbit to me, and Kez is stuck in a game called Murder by a certain Vic Wodlow, who shall remain nameless. Help needed on how to avoid starving or getting arrested by the police. Also, in Father Of Darkness, any help at all would be welcome on part two.

Next northern nutter is Lippy the Baboon, otherwise known to the police as Mark Hallson, 135

Raven Court, Old Trafford, Manchester M15 5QA. I suppose Mark lives there 'cos he's raven mad. Ho-ho. What Mark needs . . . well, one of the things Mark needs is help on Return To Ithaca, Morom, Lord Of The Rings and The Fourth Protocol. As for the freebie request — happy to oblige if you remember the sae, next time!

KIND SOULS

Some Kind Souls appear again and again, which shows generosity unbounded, but it's always good to welcome new names, one being Mark Walker, 23 Drayton Street, Sherwood, Nottingham. With an address like that you'd expect him to be able to help on Robin Of Sherwood, but he can't. Only on: Knight's Quest, Pharaoh's Tomb, Magic Mountain, Zzzz, Spytrek, Hobbit, Eureka (parts 1-4), Earthbound, Classic Adventure, Erik The Viking, Everyday Tale Of A Seeker Of Gold, Secret Of Little Hodcome, Urban Upstart, Seabase Delta, Valkyrie 17, Mafia Contract I, Colour Of Magic, Dracula, Vera Cruz Affair, Kentilla, Runes Of Zandos and Terrors Of Transloss. With the last one, though, Mark says the only thing he can't figure out is when he returns with the treasure, the villagers grumble he's left something behind. What is it??? Maybe the recent YS solution will have sorted that out for you, Mark.

When writing to Kind Souls you should always ask direct questions about the adventures you're stuck in and not just request a full solution unless someone specifically says they're prepared to provide these. Someone who is, at a cost of 20p to cover the photocopying, is Colin Walsham, 62 Leighwood Avenue, Leigh-on-Sea, Essex SS9 4LG. Colin will still answer specific questions free of charge, like any other Kind Soul, but don't forget the sae. The adventures on Colin's list are: The Boggit, Robin Of Sherlock, Hampstead, Gremlins, Robin Of Sherwood, Terrormolinos, Valkyrie 17, Hulk, Bored Of The Rings, Colour Of Magic, Spiderman, Ground Zero, Micro Man, Subsunk, The Helm, Seabase Delta, Imagination, Warlord.

Darren, who doesn't give his surname, is also prepared to provide full solutions, for 10p, for the following: Planet Of Death, Inca Treasure, Ship Of Doom, Espionage Island, Waxworks, Gremlins, Temple Terror, Golden Baton, Robin Of Sherwood, Time Machine, Perseus And Andromeda, Arrow Of Death I, Arrow Of Death II, Feasibility Experiment, Ten Little Indians, Spiderman, Shadowfire, Holy Grail, Urban Upstart, Aftershock, Denis Through The Drinking Glass, Eye Of Bain, Mystery Funhouse and Sorcerer Of Claymorgue Castle. For 20p you can have Marie Celeste, Doomsday Papers, Zzz, Mafia Contract, Mafia Contract II, Escape From Pulsar 7 and Circus. For a massive 40p for some reason, Darren has solutions to Se-Kaa Of Assiah, Seabase Delta and Sinbad And The Golden Ship. Send your pennies to Darren Question mark, 30 Moynay Gardens, Chellaston, Derby DE7 1VE.

Philip Hancock writes to me for various reasons from time to time, although in his last letter he admitted: "I thought I'd write and annoy you since Moonlighting isn't on yet!" Gee thanks, Philip. I'll write back and annoy you sometime! Luckily for him he also offers to be a Kind Soul on trillions of adventures from his humble abode at 144 Charlemont Road, East Ham, London E6 4HE: Hobbit, Ket Trilogi, Hulk, Spiderman, Gremlins, Invincible Island, Inferno, Urban Upstart, Bored Of The Rings, Perseus And Andromeda, Time Machine, Ten Little Indians, Arrow Of Death I/II, Circus, Eye Of Bain, Golden Apple, Hampstead, Seas Of Blood, Robin Of Sherwood, Robin Of Sherlock, Wizard Of Akryz, Lords Of Time, Feasibility Experiment, Mafia Contract I/II, Terrormolinos, Golden Baton, Message From Andromeda, Subsunk, Waxworks, Jewels Of Babylon, Heroes Of Karn, Sinbad And The Golden Ship, Secret Mission, Ship Of Doom, Pirate Island, Imagination, Boggit, Colour Of Magic, Valkyrie 17, Marie Celeste and Seabase Delta.

Another immense list of conquests from John Schofield, 33 Westfield Avenue, Skelmanthorpe, Nr Huddersfield, West Yorks HD8 9AH. John has completed over 40 adventures, and admits to being over 90 years old . . . No, hang on, I've got that wrong. It's over 90 adventures he's solved, and he'll admit to being over 40. He also says, "I only get to play adventures when my son's not jiggling his joystick — say when I kick him out of the house!" Judging by John's list, his poor son must get kicked out all the time. No room to list them all, so here are a few of the less common or more recent titles: Aztec Hunt For The Sun God, The Castle, Castle Blackstar, El Dorado, Fantasia Diamond, Ground Zero, The Helm, Inca Curse, Invincible Island, King Arthur's Quest, Masters Of The Universe, Matt Lucas, Mindshadow, Mindstone, Morden's Quest, Prehistoric Adventure, Return To Ithaca, Seas Of Blood, St Bridges, Se-Kaa Of Assiah, Sherlock, Snow Queen, Temple Of Vran, Terrors Of Transloss, Twin Kingdom Valley, Voodoo Castle, Witch's Cauldron and Zzzz.

Lastly another regular visitor, in the shape of Gregory Quinn, or Gregsy as he allows his girlfriend to call him. Poor wretch. This is someone else whose list is too lengthy to print in full, but here are the edited highlights: Gremlins, Escape From Pulsar 7, Murder Hunt, The Castle, The 'O' Zone, Hunchback III, Lifetern, Journey Into Moria, Doomsday Papers, Book Of The Dead, The Pawn, Hulk, The Curse, The Cryslak Experiment, Vera Cruz, Demon From The Darkside, Dome Trooper, Pirate Adventure, Tangled Tale, Golden Mask:nd Fantastic Four. Where does Gregsy-baby live? At 71 Festival Road, Portadown, Co Armagh, N Ireland BT63 5HE.

THE SLEAZY BALROG STRIKES!

WARNING: A YS Solution can seriously damage your adventure playing, so don't read on unless you really want to know.

No prizes for guessing that the first in with a full solution to The Big Sleaze was the old, if not downright decrepit, Rochdale Balrog himself, John Wilson. Rather than print the full solution to such a new game, which many of you don't seem to like, here are some of John's suggestions for inputs you might have missed.

Worth examining are the glass cabinets in Wang's shop, the calendar in Joe's office and the toilet in Joe's diner. Try taking the model aeroplane without paying, try visiting Central Park after dark or see what happens if you don't pay the cheques into the bank. It's bad news if you try getting into your car without examining it first, but even worse should you try to kiss Velma — that'll really bring tears to your eyes. But I bet it won't stop you trying to kiss the librarian.

Now for some of the 'hidden' messages. Typing FERGUS gets a different response in each part, as does the word SPUD. Other ones to try are the obvious PIRANHA and DELTA 4, but this time round JUDITH merely produces a WHAT? Well, she has left the Delta 4 group to pursue her solo career.

And finally for the very few Your Sinclair readers who might know them, try inputting most of the common swear words and assorted bodily functions.

ROOM SERVICE IN GAC

Stephen Hennessy of London sent in this information about creating a character in GAC which will move from room to room and give random comments.

"All the conditions are high priority. I'll use two counters, counters 1 and 2. Counter 1 holds where the character is and counter 2 contains a wait number or the character would zoom around all over the place! The rooms must be laid out in the order in which your character will move around. For example:

Right, now we're off!

IF (RES?6) SET6 ICSET1 ICSET2 END — I'm using marker 6 to show whether this is the first movement or not. Then I set counters 1 and 2 to show a value of 1.

IF (ROOM=CTR1) LF MESS 7 LF MESS (RAND 6) END — If the moving character is in the same room as you, then say so with message 7. Pick a random number from 1 to 5 and print the appropriate message number. These contain the character's 'random' remarks.

IF (CTR2=10) INCR 2 END — Increments the wait counter, but not absolutely essential.

IF (CTR2=4) ICSET2 INCR 1 END — If waiting time=4 then reset and move character to next location. You can make the waiting time any number.

IF (CTR1=11) ICSET1 END — If the character has completed a round of locations then put him back to the start.

I hope all this is clear. I have used this technique to devastating effect (even if I say so myself!) in a game I am writing."

Glad we had 'room' for that lot Steve.

GET GACPAC-ING!

When I reviewed Book Of The Dead by a small software house then unknown to me, The Essential Myth, I rated it 8/10 and reckoned it used all the facilities of GAC to the full. My faith in it was justified when it was announced that CRL wanted to publish the game. In fact, I discovered that Book Of The Dead used more than the facilities of GAC, as the three-man programming team behind the game had reached the parts other GAC-users cannot reach by writing their own suite of utilities to enhance Incentive's original program. Now they've made those utilities available to others in the form of The Gacpac, and no GAC-user should be without it.

The main program is menu-driven and when loaded allows you to load your GAC'd adventure data file into it. You can then do various things with the data file before re-saving it, in a hopefully improved version. One option is a simple spelling check, allowing you (or a good speller) to inspect all the words in the database and amend any wrong ones. Another routine asks you to list the verbs in the data file in the order in which you expect them to be used most frequently, obviously starting with words like GET, DROP and EXAMINE and moving down to those which might only be used once, like DISBELIEVE and PREVARICATE.

Other options will basically compact the data file by removing unnecessary END statements and also any words that were initially entered but were not finally used in the adventure, which of course GAC itself won't allow you to do. Though the compacting facilities can be slow in operation, the end result should be a saving of memory, which you can use to expand your program, and then compact again... oh heck, use the extra space to draw a couple of pictures with, it should be enough.

The 'Finisher' program allows you to load in your adventure, followed by a font of your choice, and then a loading screen produced from whatever source you choose. These will then be re-saved as a complete adventure file. I especially liked the font editor, which lets you create your own fonts, or amend the standard Spectrum font, or indeed use or amend any of the range of 14 fonts that the program comes supplied with. Quick use of flip, mirror and rotate options means you can design to your heart's content and inspect the results as you go.

All in all, I reckon if you've spent £22.95 on GAC you'd be crazy not to make the most of it by investing another £5.95 in The Gacpac, or £4.95 if you fill in the special offer coupon that should be lurking somewhere around these pages.

SERVE YOU

Are you an adventure author in v GAC and still cursing Quill? Well, re awaited hints'n'tips on the vari ac that are sure to pubu

QUILL THRILLS

From Jack Lockerby of Canterbury come several tips for Quill users, and Jack should know what he's talking about as he's written several nifty adventures himself, including some PAW'd games recently recommended in my bumper round-up.

"First a method of incorporating the GET ALL command.

Object 1—a torch. Message 1—a torch. Message 100—Taken.

Place the following in the EVENT table:

I GET ALL — PRESENT I NOTCARR I PAUSE 20 MESSAGE

I PAUSE 20 MESSAGE 100 GET I

If a torch is present and you typed GET ALL the following would occur: The message 'a torch' would appear after a short pause and then the message 'taken' would appear, again after a short pause. You'd need to do this for all the conveyable objects in the game. Also, if the item was wearable after NOTCARR, you'd have to insert NOTWORN. This doesn't take up a lot of memory and certainly adds to the playability of a game. Of course, you can also put in messages for objects that are named in a location but can't be 'GOT'. Suppose you were in a room with a blazing fire and you typed GET ALL, you could have a message something like 'A blazing fire — what are you? Some kind of magician?' At the very end of typing in all your GET ALLs you must put a final one: I GELL ALL — DONE.

"Next a routine for when you're up a tree and you drop something. Normally in a Quill game the dropped item would remain up the tree with you. Not very logical, really. Here is one method of making it fall to the ground below. This applies to any object that you might be carrying.

Location 1—Under a tree. Location 2—At the top of the tree.

Message 1—It falls to the ground below.

I DROP — AT 2 GOTO 1 AUTOD

GOTO 2 MESSAGE 1 PAUSE 150

DESC.

You must then put in the AUTOD for the other locations.

I DROP — NOTAT 2 AUTOD

DONE."

YOU WRITE!

or with writer's block? Hacked off with well, here's Mike Gerrard with those long various adventure writing utilities about put you on the write track!

PEEKING IN SOHO!

Tim Richardson of Bishops' Stortford says he's tried the following routine in several Quill'd adventures, including Soho Sex Quest, and it lets you inspect the data. That's if you don't have a very early version of The Quill which used to allow you to load in an adventure as a data file anyway, and do the same with a lot less trouble.

"Load the code," sex-fiend Tim says, "then use the following program:

10 FOR F=25500 TO 65535
20 LET A=255-PEEK(F)
30 IF A=32 AND A<127 THEN
PRINT CHR$(A);
40 NEXT F

Line 20 may need changing to just PEEK F for some games."

Tim can also provide no less than nine alternative character sets for use with GAC on tape or Opus disk for only 50p provided you enclose the tape or disc and a sae to him at 20 Crescent Road, Bishops' Stortford, Herts CM23 5JU.

Fancy a Font?

If you want to liven up your GAC layout, Matthew Conway of Berkshire (so called 'cos it's full of berks) recommends a program called The Font Creator. Not surprisingly, it allows you to create your own fonts and also puts a few fancy ready-made fonts at your disposal. Available for £1.49 from Simon Kimberley, 115 Yelverton Road, Radford, Coventry CV6 4AG.

GAC HACK!

John Logan of Glasgow had a couple of his own GAC'd adventures turned down by Incentive, so decided to inspect its Apache Gold to see if he could pick up any tips. Here's his report.

"I used a header reader and discovered that my own data files started at address 42271, then I loaded Apache Gold, pressed the magic button on my Multiface One and exited to Basic. I inserted a blank tape in my recorder and typed SAVE "GAME" CODE 42271,23194 (the free memory on loading GAC). I then loaded my GAC, and Apache Gold as a normal data file, so I could take a print-out of all the conditions, and I soon deciphered the complete solution. This works with every GAC program I've tried.

"Now a few comments on Apache Gold itself. There are 75 bytes of free memory left, and as it only takes two bytes to change the text and border colours, the first graphic could easily have been improved with a dark border, such as black. This border could have remained throughout, avoiding the glaring white text area that has been much criticised.

"Bugs abound, but two bad ones spring to mind. On first encountering the canoe, I typed the perfectly reasonable CLIMB INTO CANOE and found myself halfway up a mountain! Also, after climbing up the rope and encountering the eagle, I typed UP by mistake but found myself back down in the previous location. Due to the virtual non-use of markers in the program, the adventure can be completed in 13 moves by simply going to the tent flap and saying the password. This is bad enough, but all you have to do is type the first three letters, MON, and away you go!"

HACK DAT DATA

Graham Collier of Bath is another reader who doesn't consider an adventure fully solved till he's hacked into it and inspected the data... or is it that he can't solve an adventure until he's hacked into it? No, surely not? He reports that the following program is set up for an inspection of Quill'd games, but will work with many non-Quill games too, if you change the data entry in line 90 from 47 to a zero. Note that all the data items should have inverted commas round them, for example "221", "33", but I've omitted these for space reasons. Well, okay, out of laziness. The adventure must be a standard loading type with a header, and only the main block needs to be loaded after you've saved and run Graham's listing, which is (pause for fanfare):

10 CLEAR VAL "24575": LET a=VAL "23296"
20 RESTORE: FOR f=NOT PI TO
VAL "56": READ b$: POKE a+f,
VAL b$: NEXT f
30 PRINT #SGN PI: FLASH SGN
PI: AT SGN PI, VAL "9":
"«LOADING»: OUT VAL "254",
VAL "5": PRINT AT NOT PI, NOT PI: RESTORE USR A
40 IF LEN INKEY$ THEN GOTO
VAL "40"
60 DATA 221, 33, 0, 96, 17, 17, 0,
62, 0, 55, 205, 86
70 DATA 5, 48, 241, 221, 33, 0, 96,
237, 91, 11, 96
80 DATA 213, 62, 255, 55, 205, 86,
5, 225, 235, 167, 237
90 DATA 82, 200, 33, 0, 96, 126, 47,
254, 32, 56, 5, 254
100 DATA 123, 48, 1, 215, 35, 27,
122, 179, 200, 24, 238
```

Ta very much Graham.

Dragged up to the frozen North,
Peter Shaw braves the elements in Blackpool.

ady Luck was never a woman I really knew too well, so given a whole sunny summer season, I would go to Blackpool on the one day the town suffers torrential downpours! There I was, standing on the Pleasure Beach with my ice cream, and then woosh! I'm up to my spiral notebook in rainwater. Avoiding the cold, wet and general blerghiness of the weather, I headed for the shelter of the arcades to find out what was going down. This was actually quite a wise move since my companions for the day were all making themselves thoroughly sick on various stomach churning funrides.

Once in the local dosh factory, I found all the usual stuff, plus some of the very best games such as the brilliant new All Points Bulletin from Atari plus SDI and Alien Syndrome from Sega.

SDI

SDI, or Strategic Defence Initiative to give its full name, has finally made its debut, and it's just as good as we thought it would be when we reported on it a few issues ago. The game is based around the Star Wars defence system that's caused the superpowers so much feather-splitting recently. You are given two phases in the game, offensive and defensive. Offensively you play a game reminiscent of Defender or Mission, travelling along horizontally shooting the incoming missiles, satellites, space stations and the moon bases out of the sky. In defence mode you must stop the enemy missiles blowing up your base stations, exactly the same as Missile Command. It's pretty addictive, and I happily fed it three quid. (urp!) The sound ain't too wonderful, but the stunning graphics including views of the Earth's surface and the craters of the moon make up for this. All absorbing stuff! Thirty pence will buy you one game of Sega's SDI, but if you want more play power then one of those gold coins will give you five games.

Double Dragon

If you liked Taito's Renegade, you'll jest lurve Double Dragon. It's essentially the same sort of game, a streetfighting beat 'em up, but much nastier. The character you play is a streetwise ninja whose girl has been beaten and kidnapped by the bad guys. You must fight your way through the scrolling streets, beating up punks with your hands and feet, or by picking up weapons to thrash them with. Most villains are easy to beat up, but some of the tougher ones need swiping with an appropriate weapon before they'll keel over. The sprites are much bigger than the ones in Renegade, which adds to the realism. The sound is pretty good, too, with lots of grunting and oofing going on, and gruesome sound effects for the chain whipping through the air.

Great stuff, and really good value, even for 30p a throw.

If you're a young Nigel Mansell clone, and let's face it who'd own up to that, then you're a dead cert to be a WEC-Le-maniac. WEC Le Mans is a Formula One simulation that on its own, with its exciting graphics, would be enough without the added thrill of being a sort of cross between Outrun and Super Hang On. You have a steering wheel, an accelerator and a brake as your controls, plus the usual hi/lo gearstick, but you can forget about that. As the Christmas tree lights click down to 'go', you stamp on the gas and your car roars off to keep pace with the others. Just like Outrun, the game features real road bumps, which means that the steering column of the machine transfers the shock to your hands (wobble wobble). The track is pretty racey too, with so many twists and turns you may lose your lunch. And all this for just 20p, eh?

WEC Le Mans

Starblazer

If you want a good laugh at how bad arcade computer games can be, then make sure you check out Sega's newbie Starblazer. It's one of those video disk games where computer graphics are mixed in with actual video pictures to make the whole thing, in theory, look realistic. But unfortunately in this case it just doesn't work. The whole computer game is a very basic shoot 'em up, which would be fine, but what makes it so dreadful is the video pictures of toy tanks and the like. Weird! At 30p for one game this machine is well worth missing.

BLACKPOOL BATHERS

After doling out all my dosh in the dark, there was only one thing for it. Yep! Drag a couple of my fellow arcade-ees out into the sunlight and take away their rock until they answered my questions. Mean, eh?

Andy Hamilton, 17, Birkenhead "My mates and I all knock about in our local arcade all the time. It's a real dump, and there isn't much there, but we do have tournaments on a clamped-out Asteroids machine. My favourite arcade game here in Blackpool is that Outrun racing game. I reached stage 3 this morning, but I'm going back this afternoon and I'll reach level 5, I will!"

Collun Durrell, 16, Barnsley, South Yorkshire "My favourite game at the moment is Halley's Comet — I can get as far as the head of the Comet, but I never seem to have enough lives or fire power left to destroy it totally. I found a really good shoot-'em-up in a service station on the way up here but I forget the actual name of it. Oh well, I'll have another look on the way back..."

Steve Weston, 24, Kensington, West London "I only visit arcades very occasionally, so I've never starred on the high score tables anywhere, but I do like games like Pacland and Bionic Commandos. My first memory of an arcade was in the Queen's Building at Heathrow. It had a couple of Space Invaders and loads of one-armed bandits."

Steve Hainsworth, 19, Watford "My favourite game is R-Type, which is simply excellent, but I also like Darius and Double Dragon. I think Sega makes the best arcade games, followed by Atari, because although Atari comes up with some clever ideas for its stuff, Sega uses the best graphics. I've got a Spectrum and about 60 games for it. I tend to buy any arcade conversions, even if I didn't like the original."

All Points Bulletin

If you're faint hearted then stay away from Atari's APB. It drove me to utter frustration after only a few minutes of panicked play.

So what's it all about then? I hear you ask. Well, it's all based around the life of an overworked American cop, and the problems he faces every day. Well, okay, it's actually a bit more satirical than that.

The game starts with the Police Chief standing at the front of the briefing room giving a description of the crook you've got to catch, plus a picture of the car he's driving. Then you're out on the streets, tearing round, booking people for any offence they might be committing, while you search for the big crook of the day. Normal lawbreakers like litter droppers, honkers and the like, will normally pull over as soon as you finger them. The big crooks won't give up quite so easily. Once you've brought the crook back to the station then you must get a confession out of him by rapping the buttons in quick succession. This is one of the most comic graphic displays I've ever seen on a game! While you're rattling the suspect's throat the Chief comes wobbling down the stairs. You have to get the confession out of the crook before the Chief opens the door.

Probably one of the funniest games of the year, and it only costs twenty pence a game.

Okay that's it. Next month I'll be heading to the d-e-e-p South again in the shape of Bournemouth. Keep your fingers crossed and I might avoid more of this lovely summer weather. See ya there.

ARCADE NEWS

There are basically two new releases of note this month. Data East is to launch Captain Silver (hah har, Jim Lad!), which is a sort of animated pirate adventure. The aim of the game, surprise surprise, is to collect as much treasure as possible. Starting in a town on the first level, you must hotfoot it to the wharf, avoiding any nasties such as huge cats and pinching crabs. This all sounds a bit like Pitfall to me, since it requires lots of jumping and ducking to complete. Once at the wharf, you enter the second phase of the game, aboard the pirate ship, the Glug Glug. On board, you have to avoid the cutlasses thrown at you, while trying to find the Captain. After doing for 'im, you move to the last level on the island where the treasure is hidden.

Captain Silver's out very soon, so nip down to your local and check it out today.

The other important release this month comes from Hamco, an Arcadia style shoot-'em-up called Dragon Split. It's set in a prehistoric world, where the usual spaceships and aliens are replaced by pterodactyls. The graphics are excellent, and the sound is reported to be terrific, although this remains to be seen... er, heard rather.

Dragon Split is out very soon, so watch out for it and get them before they get you!

We've mentioned it before, but now Capcom's Bionic Commandos is out in strength at many regional arcades. It's another two player game, with a pair of bionically altered heroes for you to control. The bionic arms of the players extend so you can swing from branches and punch villains from a distance. It looks like wizard fun, so watch out for it.

BIONIC COMMANDOS

Look out for a full review in the near future.

Also out now is Bally Midway's new plan view combat game, Rescue Raider. You drive a battle engine, a sort of heavily armed cross between a tank and a tricycle, in 80 screens of high energy excitement. By the time you read this, Raider should already be edging into the charts, so watch this space.

WON THE AIRPAT II

Once more unto the breach... Owen and Audrey Bishop bring you the second despatch from the new YS Strategy front.

Just in case you were foolish enough to miss the first instalment of On The Warpath we'll tell you what you've missed. This is the spot for all strategists, tacticians, wargamers and anyone else who wants a game to exercise the little grey cells rather than the weary finger tips. Reviews, views, hints'n'tips and above all lots of stuff from you, the elite of Specky games players.

NEW GAMES FOR OLD

There may not be many new games this month, but there's still a lot of mileage to be had from the old ones. You can either just play them again using different tactics or you can set up an entirely new game from the framework of the original. To show you what we mean here's a brand new wargame that'll cost you absolutely nothing. All you need is a copy of CCS's Vulcan and a bit of brainpower. Vulcan already has five games in it but why not make one more?

APOCALYPSE

Command/£9.95

Essentially a classical strategy game for two to four players (no computer-opponent). The map displays 24 strategic centres, divided between the players at the beginning. Your aim is to expand your empire by occupying the centres held by your opponent(s), while holding your own centres against all-comers. Your revenue is derived from the centres and other areas you occupy and used to deploy army, navy or nuclear weapons. Spend your revenue wisely and deploy your forces where they will be most effective. The more you expand your empire, the more revenue you obtain. Victory conditions are not built into the program. Suggestions are given in the manual and the players agree beforehand on how the winner is to be decided.

There are four scenarios, based on maps of Europe, Britain, London and the Caribbean, respectively. These present minor variations (naval strategy dominates the Caribbean scenario, for example) but, whether you are trying to capture Berlin, Battersea or Belize, the strategy is much the same. The London scenario seems intended for light-hearted play — nuking Paddington Station from a silo in Trafalgar Square is a little unrealistic, to put it mildly! In fact, in spite of the game's title, the nuclear aspect does not add anything to it. The effects of nuking are not as devastating as they would be in real life. It just provides a gambling slant in an otherwise sober game. Fortunately, players can agree to ignore nuclear weaponry altogether and concentrate on the basic strategic elements.

The manual is detailed and clear, but it makes the game sound much faster and more exciting than it really is. This is a game for the pensive player who is happy to sit for a half-hour or more making a move. The manual helpfully suggests that you set yourself up with a supply of tasty provisions before beginning to play. Meanwhile, the other players will be scoffing all the dainties! The movement system is slow and cumbersome which further reduces the pace. Control is menu-driven and easy to understand; if in doubt press 'O' and you are returned to the main menu. Unfortunately, the frequently-used 'O' key is next to BREAK, so a keying inaccuracy puts you back into BASIC.

The maps are simple but adequate. Noises off are irritating — especially if you really are trying to think. Combat resolution appears to be based almost entirely on chance with a bit of bluff (poker players will like it, tacticians will hate it). Summing up, serious strategy with frills of the wrong sort.

Strategy

covers the period that includes the battle at Medenine, Mareth and Tebago. The sequence starts with Medenine so you probably won't get the formation of the Mareth Line battle, which is an interesting one. So, let's set up the Battle Of Mareth as our starting point. Run Vulcan, selecting two players, open (non-hidden) movement and Scenario 3. To begin with we're not fighting — just moving the units into position, as shown on the map. Of the Axis units, the Centauro Armoured Division, 10th and 21st Panzer Divisions, SV288 and the Ramcke Parachute Brigade were not in this battle so move them well away from the battle area.

Hold the Allies where they are for the first turn, or they may catch up with the Axis units and start fighting before the whistle blows. Move the Allied units, the 201st Guards Brigade and the 23rd Armoured Brigade, well out of harm's way as they weren't present. The 1st Armoured Division aren't on the scene to start with, but will appear later. The 4th Indian Division will arrive later still, so don't worry about them yet. You should have completed all this manoeuvring by the 17th March. Now you can save the game.

Re-run Vulcan and load the old game that you've just saved. You can now choose either the two player game, or one player against the computer, the computer commanding the Axis forces. The Allied commander (you) must do what Monty did — eliminate all Axis units or drive them back beyond Gabes before the game ends on 27th March. You can adopt any tactics you like but it's fun to try Monty's left hook where the New Zealand Division swing round the Matama Hills to engage the Axis reserves at Tebago. Oh, and don't forget to bring the Indian Division into action when it appears on the road from the south-east.

In a game within a game like this you can make up the rules and set your own victory conditions, provided that the program allows it. The rules we've outlined make it fairly easy to win — you can always make it harder by imposing another rule. We'd love to hear how you got on with this new game — which units did you send back, did the Allies win with the reduced force? Bung us a line and let us know, and don't forget to mention any games within games that you've invented. They need not be historical battles like Mareth, just any game derived from another that's interesting and fun. We'll publish the best and send you a YS badge for your trouble.

TACTIPS

Here it comes! Another batch of eagerly awaited mail from our tactical readers. First out of the bag is a concise recipe for Allied victory in Arnhem by CCS. According to K Hart of New Crofton, Wakefield your battle orders are: 1. Take and hold the road junction south west of Eindhoven; 2. Take and hold, in force, the east side of the bridge north east of Eindhoven; 3. Place a line of troops between the two roads south west of Nijmegen; 4. Take and hold the west side of Arnhem bridge; 5. In the early stages, put no troops east of the Arnhem river. Cheers K, you've won yourself a YS badge.

Maybe the tip above will help Gary Horsham of Blackpool who, apart from praising the new strategy section, asks for help with Arnhem and how to stay awake in Battlefield Germany. We're both insomniacs when it comes to wargaming, but perhaps someone out there can help Gary as he never seems to win.

Another reader wanting help with Battlefield Germany is David 'Nuclear' Nangle from Dublin. He gained a NATO victory by purely defensive tactics, but can't make his units attack successfully. Being a giver as well as a taker he continues, "Now here's a tip for Stonkers by Imagine. Bring all your units down to the port and re-supply the lowest. Put your forces in a semi circle with armour units forming a strong link at the front of the semi circle. Now wait for the enemy to attack and make sure your supply trucks are safely behind your lines. If you lose sight of enemy units, check your HQ and you'll find them. Only if you've beaten off the attack at the port should you attack the HQ (NE of port). You should then win quite easily." Thanks Nuclear.

Finally, a word or two from A Betts of Tamworth about Firebird's Rebelstar. He's managed to blow up the reactor at level 8, after killing every operative, which sounds pretty good going to us. His winning tips are: "Keep about eight men by the top left entrance, but don't blast a hole through the door. The rest of the men should go towards the reinforcement units. All the operatives will move towards these men. After a few turns, the men at the top left hatch should make a run for the reactor and blow it up!" Good classical tactics, AB, but what's all this about cutting grass with the lawn mower? AB also says you can pick up the dead bodies, but doesn't know what to do with them. Anybody got any bright ideas? That's your lot tipwise for this month but keep sending 'em in to O&A. On The Warpath. Your Sinclair, 14 Rathbone Place, London W1P 1DE, 'cos any printed win a YS Badge!

YOUR SINCLAIR

THE YS/US GOLD COMPUTER BRAIN OF 1987 AWARD

Yes, if you have a brain the size of a planet, you could be in the running for fame, fortune, a fabulously expensive champion's trophy and a bundle of YS/US Gold goodies, including a brand-new Spectrum +3!

Does the size of your brain cause you embarrassment at the barbers? Does your hat size read like a telephone number? If you've been following 'The Challenge' in the last three issues you'll know that this month is the final part of this, the hardest and most brainblending compo in the history of Your Sinclair. The four readers, plus guest, who answer the most Brain Page questions correctly will be invited to the 1987 Computer Brain Of Britain Challenge, to be held at an all-expenses-paid ritzy venue in London's glittering West End. (Zowie!) Not only will the winner walk off with a stunningly expensive Computer Brain Award trophy, but the lucky brainbox will also receive a brand-new Spectrum +3 computer with all the bells and whistles! (Ting! Peep!) And even the runners-up swagger off with some US Gold goodies. Interested?

Okay, this is what you have to do: a complete entry consists of the three previous Brain Pages, plus the one you're reading now, four in all, ripped out of a copy of Your Sinclair (no photocopies allowed this time), with as many questions as you can answer completed in black or blue pen. Then fill in the coupon on this page with your name and address, so we know who you are. Right? Now, don't be worried if you can't answer all the questions, as it's the reader with the most correct answers who'll win. And don't let the fact that you missed the last three Brain Pages bug you either, as you can easily get copies of the mags (August, September and October) from the Back Issues ad on page 88.

So, put your brain in gear and prepare for the final barrage of very hard (oo-er) questions.

1. Who wrote Finders Keepers, Spellbound, Knight Tyme and Stormbringer?

2. Which coin-op conversion comes free with the Sega Games Console?

3. Where would you find Churglik, Phyzo and Blustan?

4. In which simulation do you get a message 'Sonar Reports Distant Explosions'?

5. Who is this character and in which game does he appear?

6. How many levels are there in Sentinel?

7. Who is Number 5?

8. What colour is the baddie you can't kill in Gauntlet?

9. Name all five planets in Head Over Heels.

10. Name three ninja games.

Name.....

Address.....

Postcode.....

Daytime phone.....

11. How many tracks are there in BMX Simulator?

12. Name the free program on Academy.

13. Who digs for liver and kidneys in the dead of night?

14. Where can you fight with Leiser-Freisers?

15. Name the game from which this screenshot was taken.

16. Which is the odd man out: Lee, Joe, Edgar, Tarquin or Mary?

17. What does OXO mean in Gauntlet?

18. What colour is the Monty Mole sprite in Auf Wiedersehen Monty?

19. In which game do all the characters wear sunglasses?

20. How many issues of Your Sinclair have there been? (Including this one!)

Send this whole page, complete with the previous three Brain Pages to: The 1987 Computer Brain Of Britain Challenge, Your Sinclair, 14 Rathbone Place, London W1P 1DE. Completed entries must arrive at the YS office no later than 15th November 1987. The Editor's decision is final, and no employees of Dennis Publishing or US Gold may enter.

I enclose the four completed Brain Pages, with as many questions completed as I could wring from my underworked brain cells, and declare my intention to enter the Computer Brain Of Britain Challenge.

Now the Summer will surely last forever!

The smell of the surf, the sun on your back, the sand between your toes... This isn't California Dreamin' - this is for real! Six of the best West Coast sports designed to set your pulse racing! Wow your friends with your incredible flying skateboard feats; or show your cool hacking at the sack.

Slate down the boardwalk, flip the Frisbee* and wheelie the BMX. And then the ultimate test - that King of Californian sports - shooting the curl as you battle with those giant Pacific rollers to decide which surfer truly rules the waves!

You'll be playing for big name sponsors like Pacer Skateboards, Ocean Pacific*, RAD Mag, Frisbee*, Hacky Sack*, Morey Boogie*, Burton*, Snowboards and Bluebird*, and contained in each pack you'll find a fun to enter competition to win quality products made by these companies too!

California Games™ features superb graphics, all the atmosphere of the West Coast, and one to eight players can take part. All the quality you expect from a Epyx product is here and so much more. We could tell you more but instead let's hear what the critics have to say:

"California Games is quite simply the apex of computer sports gaming. Even in purely technical terms Epyx have somehow managed to surpass their own high standards - the pictures and sounds generated by this program are atmospheric beyond belief."

If you gather up all the superlatives from previous Epyx reviews and add them together, you just might go halfway towards describing California Games*.

- ZAP 64

"California Games has to be the best release this year so far."

Some of the individual games are almost worth the asking price on their own*.
